LONDON—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill told the house of commons today that Gen. Harold Alexander estimates the Germans and Italians have lost 50,000 men, killed, captured or wounded in the African battle.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—"An attack will be made in due course across the channel or the North sea," Prime Minister Churchill informed the house of commons today.

"Such an attack," he said, requires an immense degree of preparation, vast numbers of special landing craft and a great army, trained division by division in amphibious warfare.

"All this is proceeding, but it takes time.

"However," said the prime minister, "should the enemy become demoralized at any moment, the same careful preparations would not be needed."

"Risks would be run on a large scale," he declared, "but this certainly is not the case at the present time."

The prime minister said that the German army in France was "as large, apart from the (British) homeguard as ours in Britain . . . It is not so well equipped as the British and American troops but contains many veterans . . ."

Invasion preparations "have been greatly advanced," he said and

"Enormous installations have been and are being brought into existence at all our suitable ports.

"But no one would have been justified nor would it have been physically possible to have made an effective invasion of the continent during the summer or autumn months of 1942."

Churchill disclosed that he had "instructed the chiefs of staff to disregard public clamor" in planning future operations.

"I have been asked why did you allow false hopes to be raised

Commandos Rally Tonight at Park With First Campaign Reports.

With $94,520 in pledges definitely on record at noon, War Chest headquarters today predicted that tonight's report session will reveal that $100,000 or more has been raised in the three days the Commandos have been driving toward a $140,377 objective.

A check of division majors completed shortly before noon today disclosed the $94,520 figure showed indications that by the time this afternoon's pledge contacts are completed, the Commandos will be ready for the "home stretch" offensive tomorrow.

Major General Fred B. Hout said the industrial division whose quota is $84,000, largest in the drive, has reported receiving approximately $70,000. Balance of the $94,520 is made up of partial reports from other scattered divisions.

One division has already gone over the top. Major Hout said the professional division has raised $3,950, a sum of $50 in excess of its quota and there are still more pledges to come. The division is headed by Atty. H. H. Schettler.

Reports already in hand do not include pledges from Shelby and the balance of Richland county. Shelby's Community Fund organization approved a $12,000 quota for War Chest agencies and rural Richland county has a quota of $3,900 to raise. No rural report will be made until Saturday, closing date for the drive.

Describing the drive progress as "most encouraging," Major General Hout said that hundreds of contacts are still to be made along with scores of "call-backs" on persons who were not available for contact on the first call by Commandos.

Tonight's report session will follow Mansfield's Armistice day parade which starts at 8 p. m. Majors will make individual reports of amounts they have raised, speaking from a platform on the west side of the park

Several other features have been arranged for the report rally.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—John Gwilt, international representative of the CIO United Steel Workers estimated today that 40 per cent of the employes at the Buckeye Steel Castings company has joined a strike called in "protest against working conditions in the plant."

Gwilt said all departments were affected by the strike called late yesterday, but that there would be no picketing.

F. H. Bonnet, Buckeye vice president, said operations had been curtailed and the war labor board had been asked to intervene. The plant is engaged practically 100 per cent in war work, he added.

McDermid and his committee are concluding an intensive study of sound-travel tracks to determine the locations of the 10 sirens in the congested industrial and commercial areas and the residential areas of the city. Six five-horse and four two-horsepower sirens were ordered last Saturday by the civilian defense council, eight of them arriving yesterday.

Rationing of gasoline for Mansfield and Richland county motorists will begin Dec. 1, according to the Office of Price Administration which announced yesterday that unavoidable delays in the distribution of registration forms and rationing books caused a postponement from the Nov. 22 date.

Registration for basic A ration books which was to have started tomorrow in city and county schools consequently will not take place until Nov. 18-19-20, next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Following an instruction school for volunteer supplemental registrars and war plant transportation committees in John Simpson Junior high school last night, W. J. County Red Cross Secretary Resigns, Successor Appointed Miss Lenore Van Gundia, executive secretary of the Richland County Red Cross chapter, resigned her position effective Dec. 1, at the executive board meeting in Red Cross headquarters late yesterday.

Her successor will be Miss Miriam Hooper, executive Red Cross secretary in East Liverpool for the past year and a half. R. D. Iden, chairman of finance committee, announced.

Miss Van Gundia said she is to be married in December. L. W. Birch, chapter chairman, was informed of her intended resignation in mid-October, Miss Van Gundia said. Birch and finance committee members then considered applications and submitted Miss Hooper's name for approval yesterday.

Coming here in August, 1941, to replace Mrs. Gertrude English, who was Red Cross executive secretary for 17 years, Miss Van Gundia had been executive secretary for three years in Wyandot county. Prior to that, she had studied Red Cross work at Heidelberg college in Tiffin. In 1939 she went to Washington, D. C., for a special training course.

Casablanca Commander Asks Terms After Exhausting Means of Resistance.

LONDON — Prime Minister Winston Churchill today told the House of Commons that both Casablanca, on the Atlantic coast of Morocco, and Bougie, in Algeria, had fallen to the Americans. Bougie lies 120 miles east of Algiers, about one-third of the distance to the French naval base at Bizerte.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN FRENCH NORTH AFRICA —(AP)—Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander-in-chief in North Africa, disclosed today that "Rabat," the French capital of Morocco, is in American hands.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—The Allied occupation of French northwest Africa was near completion today with the request of the French commander at Casablanca for an armistice, but German air-borne troops and warplanes were reported to have landed in Tunisia, the buffer protectorate between Algeria and Libya.

The Vichy radio announced that Admiral Michelier, the French commander at the Moroccan port of Casablanca, had been compelled to ask an armistice because "after three days of fierce fighting all means of resistance are exhausted".

Collapse of the fight there followed the surrender of Algiers on Sunday and the entrance of American troops into Oran yesterday. These were the three chief centers of resistance in Algiers and Morocco.

It was not known whether any British or American forces had yet succeeded in reaching Tunisia, said the Allied spokesman who announced the arrival of German forces there.

The spokesman said that the German movement had "been going on for some little time," but that the Nazi strength was not known.

(At the same time the British radio, heard in New York, said Vichy had broadcast an announcement that Italian marines had oc-

Usual Thanksgiving Menu To Cost 20 Per Cent More.

CHICAGO — (AP) — A mixture of rationing, voluntary and enforced, and higher food prices will make the 1942 Thanksgiving feast a typical wartime America affair, market statistics indicated today.

This year's dinner, if its menu of the usual variety and length, may cost almost 20 per cent more than the 1941 Thanksgiving spread, and 60 per cent more than two years ago. In fact, it will be the most expensive since 1919, when Americans gave thanks for the first full year of world peace.

Government ceilings on practically all foods prevent the cost of feasting from being even higher while prices and rationing may limit the menu, though not much.

LONDON—Goaded by the American coup in Africa, Adolf Hitler scrapped his armistice with France today, sent his grey-clad columns racing south toward Toulon and Marseille, and launched parachutists and air-borne infantry into French Tunisia.

Reports from Vichy said Marshal Petain declared the armistice no longer in effect (which could return undefended France to a technical state of war with the Axis), and that he would make no move to interfere with whatever resistance the French could put up.

Word reached the French frontier that the old marshal had left Vichy, taking with him Gen. Maxime Weygand, former French North African commander and long regarded as a sympathizer with the Allies.

Petain's position still was unclear.

The Mediterranean took its grim place as the great new front of the war.

British By-Pass Halfaya Pass to Trap Fleeing Foe

(By United Press)

CAIRO—British armored columns have by-passed Sidi Barrani and Halfaya (Hellfire) Pass on both sides and trapped hundreds of Germans and Italians fleeing with the remnants of Marshal Erwin Rommel's Afrika Korps, a front-line dispatch said today.

United Press Staff Correspondent Henry Gorrell reported from the outskirts of Sidi Barrani that the enemy's retreat was blocked by an armored column which reached Solum, just inside the Egyptian border, this morning.

Presumably Rommel had already taken a large part of the 20,000 or 25,000 men he salvaged from his original 12 divisions into Libya.

Gorrell reported that the Royal Air Force and British armored units were believed to have closed one end of Halfaya Pass.

The Eighth army and the Royal Air Force reported in a communique that Imperial units drove the enemy from Sidi Barrani, some 50 miles east of the border, yesterday and battled his rear guard at Bugbug, 23 miles inside the border.

The victorious Allies collected prisoners and equipment as they advanced along the coastal road. Many Italians, abandoned by their allies, were found in pitiful condition, lost, starving and almost dead of thirst.

U. S. Naval Units Harass Foe In Guadalcanal Waters

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Small American naval units today are moving into waters around Guadalcanal to harass Japanese communication lines and to prevent reinforcements from reaching enemy troops on the island.

These small units, recently augmented by numerous torpedo boats, are prowling the seas near Guadalcanal to strike at any Jap fleet units in the battle area. Recent developments indicated that the enemy has been unable to land adequate supplies and reinforcements to Jap ground forces.

Blows delivered against enemy naval units by the small American naval forces were believed to have caused the Japs to offer little resistance to the advances of U. S. troops east of Henderson airfield. It was pointed out that the Japan-

Starting Tots On the Long Trail to Bed

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

The average child from six to 12 spends about one twentieth of his day being chased to bed. Mother usually is the chaser. When she wears out, the father may take it up. Either might be assisted liberally by Grandma.

The siege begins at about 7:30 with intermittent attacks thereafter until nine, 10, or even 11 o'clock, the attackers growing more severe and the defense more vigorous, the attackers and defenders angrier and angrier at each other as the conflict continues, until at last the youngster surrenders. Then there is a lull of 20 or more hours, and then the battle must be fought all over again.

A mother writes of her girl 11 years of age. "We have a big problem with her at bedtime. I say nine o'clock is the hour she should go to bed and in order to be in bed at that hour she must start at 8:15. We have a fuss over that all the time, and as a result she doesn't go to sleep until 10:30 or 11."

A great many children about this age argue with their parents about the proper hour for bed on the ground that other children don't have to go to bed so early.

Parents Must Be Poised.

In the first place, many children from six to 12 would go to bed earlier than they do if their parents would let them alone. Indeed, some parents should do so, being by temperament and from lack of poise and self-control unfitted to require the child effectively to go at the hour they designate.

Ascertain the actual number of hours of sleep your child should have. For a child of 11 it should be at least 10 hours. A chart giving desirable hours of sleep for the child at various ages may be had without cost by writing me in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three cent stamp on it.

Show the child this chart and help him see when he should be in bed in order to acquire the proper hours of sleep. Refuse to argue with him about when other children go to bed. Merely drop the matter by saying it is none of your business how other people manage their children. Then if you can manage yourself well and get the cooperation of the other parent, and if up to now you have been able to control your child, proceed as follows:

Clearly announce the hours when this child shall be in bed with lights off. Announce an effective penalty should she be as much as five minutes late and see that the penalty is enforced. Rule out tongue-lashing from the penalty. One good punishment might be to require the youngster to stay up one or two hours doing nothing but sitting with no distractions.

For Adolescents.

This procedure of course, would hardly work with a child of 15 or older. If there has been adequate control, minus nagging up to the teen age, the youth in a family of good relationships will be able to manage his bedtime for himself, provided he is not out too late at night. Unfortunately most adolescents don't get nearly enough sleep.

Let me urge parents of babies and young children to hold themselves strictly to time schedules and gradually shift this responsibility to the youngster. It is reasonable to expect the child of four or five to send himself to bed at a regular time.

My bulletin on "Sleeping Problems" my be had without cost by writing me in care of this paper enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three cent stamp.

Solving Parent Problems.

Q. My boy and girl 9 and 11 quarrel almost all the time. Please help me.

A. Expect them to quarrel some; normal children do. When they endanger each other or the property, disturb the neighbors, or exhaust your patience just separate them for an hour or two without trying to place the blame.

Q. When my girl 11 adds or subtracts, she seems so slow. If she is hurried as at school she will make many mistakes, but if she takes her time she usually is accurate.

A. Almost surely she counts as she adds or subtracts. Then when she hurries she just guesses. She will not improve much till she learns by heart the basic addition and subtraction facts. There are only 100 of each.

HAVE EVERYBODY HELP

It would be a great thing if you could get every player at the table to help you win all the time. Unfortunately, that is not usually the case. Your opponents are naturally doing all they can to beat you, and sometimes the slips of your partner, in either bidding or play, damage you just as much. But there are rare occasions when each of the four does something to contribute to your success. Then it is up to you to recognize the help which is proffered you.

2 ♠	3 ♥	Pass	4 ♥

South led his diamond K, then switched to the 2 of his partner's clubs, the 9 forcing the K, and the diamond 8 coming back to the Q and A. Certainly it appeared in the beginning as if there also might be a trick lost by East in each of the two major suits, setting him a couple, but it didn't work out that way at all. South led the club 3 to the fourth trick, the J and A going on and the heart 7 ruffing it.

East had now guessed South's distribution—five spades, from the bidding; four clubs from his using the 2 as his first lead of the suit, and four diamonds, from North's having played the 3 on the first diamond and then led back the 8, marking him as probably having exactly one more. If that was right, South had no hearts. In that case, maybe North would help East.

So East ruffed the diamond 4 in the dummy with the heart 4, cashed the club Q for a discard of the spade 4, and led the heart 5. In a fit of dumbness, carelessness, or something, North played low, instead of splitting his honors as he should, and East won with the 10. The heart K, heart A, spade A and diamond J then completed the hand.

Tomorrow's Problem.

If East leads the heart 6, what is the correct way for North to gain maximum results in playing this deal for 3-No Trumps?

Everyone Needs Vitamin C; These Menus Have It

By BETSY NEWMAN

HOW DO you get enough Vitamin C in your family's diet? The answer is each person needs 75 milligrams a day and you can get it by drinking a glass of orange or tomator juice, first. Orange juice has more milligrams than tomato juice. Cauliflower and cabbage also give us some. Vitamin C content is somewhat reduced in cooking, so eat raw vegetables at least part of the time. Raw turnip, salad greens, some of the fresh fruits.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I stirred restlessly in my husband's arms at his question. There was such turmoil in my mind over the drama investing Olga's daughter, and in which the mysterious old man of the cafe seemed to be involved, that even to my husband I did not wish to voice any conjecture.

"No being clairvoyant, I'm not venturing a guess," I answered evasively.

"That means you don't want to talk about it," he said. "You've had enough talk and action tonight to last you a year. So 'bairnie, cuddle doon,' and rest a bit until Dad gets back."

"That will be heavenly," I said, burrowing my head into his shoulder. And there I rested contentedly, my frayed nerves relaxing their tension, until a quarter hour later, when my father came back.

Spencer Pleased.

As I hastily rose to greet him, I noted an aura of satisfaction about him, as he seated himself.

"I don't think either Milner or Redfield has the slightest inkling that we suspect anything," he said. "Steve has just recovered consciousness, and Dr. Twitchell is staying with him for a time, on orders from Veritzen.

"Philip is playing up beautifully," he went on, and I knew he was feeling triumphant over winning his battle against the theatrical magnate's desire to dismiss summarily both his star actor and his hotel manager.

"He is keeping up his air of lofty condescension toward Milner," my father went on, "as if putting him on probation, first for his laxness, then his undue severity in discipline, which resulted in that 'practical joke' with the drugged coffee. Philip actually gave me permission to assure Redfield that he regretted the jealous rage which impelled Noel to knock the actor unconscious.

"That was a bitter pill, but he downed it manfully. I thing he washed it down with a draught of resolve to make things extra unpleasant for both Milner and Redfield when the time comes.

Unpleasant Dose.

"And I had an unpleasant dose to swallow myself," he added, with a grim smile. "It isn't salutary to my pride to have Milner imagine he has completely hood-winked me, and that I have no idea of what he is trying to do. But that doesn't matter, for now I know both Milner and Redfield will go about their nefarious business, without any suspicion that they are being trailed by me."

"You certainly are to be congratulated, sir," Dicky said warmly. "But are you sure they don't suspect you are trailing the gang to which they belong?"

"They know I am moving Heaven, earth and hell to rescue Marion, but believe that is my only aim. They have no inkling that I even suspect them of subversive activities against the government.

"But they want to find out how well we are succeeding in trailing Marion's captors, and that is the reason for the desperate attempt to place a dictograph in this apartment. But how are Noel and Mary?'

"Still sleeping soundly," I told him. "And what shall I tell them when they awaken? Dr. Twitchell says they will think they merely fell asleep, and will have no suspicion of being drugged. Do you want me to pretend that is my belief?"

HERE ARE MORE QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ON GAS RATIONS PLAN

Q. How many miles of driving are allotted for holders of A, B and C books?

A. The basic books are good for a total of 240 miles a month of which 150 miles must be used in occupational driving and the remainder may be for other driving. Owners of a B book may drive a total of 560 miles a month, of which 470 must be used for occupational driving. The holder of a C book finds his mileage limited by his occupational requirements.

Q What requirements must be filled before getting supplemental allowance?

A A driver must show that his occupational mileage requirements exceed 150 miles a month, that he is a member of a share-the-ride group or that no such plan is feasible and that no other adequate alternate means of transportation is available. He then becomes eligible for a B book.

Q Who will get C books?

A. Persons who fill the foregoing classifications and who in addition fall within one of 20 categories established by OPA. Included here are government officials on official business, school teachers in performance of school duties, persons carrying pupils or school employes, deliveries of United States mail, wholesale newspaper distributors, physicians, surgeons, dentists and other licensed practitioners for necessary professional calls, farm veterinarians, medical students and internes under specified conditions, embalmers, ministers, religious practitioners, farmers for hauling produce, newsreel photographers, persons in essential war industries of specified classifications, authorized agents of government management and labor to maintain peaceful industrial relations in war plants.

Q Are salesmen eligible for preferred mileage?

A. All types of salesmen have been eliminated from "C" preferred mileage.

Q Who must sign the application for the basic A book?

A The registered owner of the vehicle should sign on the line which says "person submitting application" but the application may be submitted by a representative. If the owner cannot sign for some legitimate reason an agent may sign the owner's name and follow it by his own signature.

Q May I give any excess tires I have to a friend?

A No, you must sell them to the Defense Supply corporation through the local Railway Express Agency.

Q Must I have my A book before applying for additional allotments?

A Yes.

Q Must I present my application for supplemental allowance to the board in person?

A No, you mail it to the board.

Q If I don't register for the basic book on Nov. 18, 19 and 20, how long must I wait before making application?

A. You may not make application before Dec. 2 a day after rationing starts, unless good cause can be shown that a hardship would exist.

Q. How often must my tires be inspected?

A. Holders of basic books must have their tires inspected at an official station every 120 days. Holders of all other ration books must have tires inspected every 60 days or every 5,000 miles, whichever occurs first.

Q May someone besides myself use my ration book if I don't use all my gas allotment?

A No, books are not transferable.

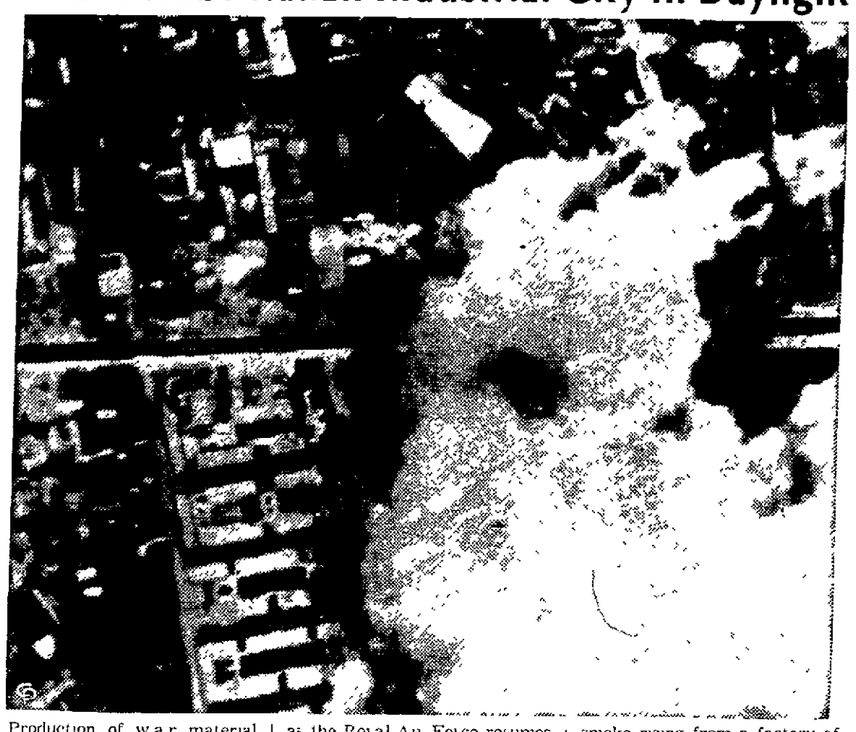
Q What if I run out of gas and become stranded somewhere?

A. Go to a station and get gas in a can, leaving your ration book with the operator. When you return he will give you the balance of gas allowed by your coupons. This method permits the station operator to determine if the book is being used for the proper automobile.

Q Is it required that a sticker be displayed on the windshield and must it correspond to the ration book?

A. Stickers must be displayed and in all cases the sticker representing the highest book possessed by the motorist. A "C" sticker will honor coupons of any lesser book.

RAF Bombs Italian Industrial City In Daylight



Production of war material in Milan where much of Italy's heavy industry is concentrated, promises to soon hit new lows as the Royal Air Force resumes its attacks. This picture, made during one of the most recent daylight raids, shows dense smoke rising from a factory after being hit by one of the famed British block-buster bombs.

THEATERS

Honors Leathernecks.

Shriek of diving planes, the roar of anti-aircraft form part of the symphony of battle accompanying the deeds of heroic American fighting Marines in "Wake Island" now showing at the Ohio theater. Paramount has taken the epic story of the 14-day siege of the Pacific outpost and made a screen drama of it from the viewpoint of men who fought the battle. Playing feature roles of the fighting leathernecks are Brian Donlevy, Robert Preston, Walter Abel and Albert Dekker. Credit for the original story is given to the United States Marine corps.

Tish's In Town.

Filmed from the "Tish" series, best-sellers by Mary Robert Rinehart which are still among the popular books today, comes the laugh-riot "Tish" at the Madison theater starring Marjorie Main in the title role with ZaSu Pitts and Aline MacMahon. As head of the three feminine musketeers, Miss Main leads them into adventures ranging from being freed by a tame bear to a fishing trip that gets them capsized in a lake. Further comedy is added by Guy Kibbee. "Wildcat," a drama of oil fields, is the second feature with Richard Arlen and Arline Judge.

Autry Sings Today.

Held over today for fans of Gene Autry and Smiley Burnette is the picture "Bells of Capistrano" concerning a feud between two traveling rodeo shows. Autry arrives in time to put a stop to a small internecine war. Autry sings six songs to Virginia Grey among which is "In Old Capistrano". Second feature, "Police Bullets" is a gripping and dramatic tale of police on the trail of persistent "protection-for-pay" racketeers. John Archer and Joan Marsh are the Hollywood starlets in the show.

Weavers Are "Law."

Crime runs unabated in the town where June Weaver is mayor and Leon Weaver has the role of police chief, members of the Weaver family of vaudeville, in the movie "The Old Homestead" now playing at the Park theater. Romantic leads go to Maris Wrixon and Robert Conway. Gangsters run around chased by June masqueraded as a crook herself until the end when peace finally reigns. George Sanders again enacts the title-role in "The Falcon Takes over" co-feature on the Park bill. New heroine suave Sanders is Lynn Bari who plays a resourceful newspaper women involved in several killings and a few cases of kidnaping.

GROVELAND, Mass.—(U.P.)—He couldn't qualify for the draft, but—Austin Brisco, on a bet, hiked 20 miles with a 30-pound pack on his back in seven hours. He won a $10 bet. His draft board still classifies him 4-F.

Urges Rigid Exams for Food Handlers

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Miss Midnight's Notebook.

MANHATTAN GLITTER: Katie Hepburn sneaking out of the "Without Love" rehearsal in hipless lacks. . . . Benny Goodman rushing down Broadway in his winter coat with fur collar and cuffs. ("Git a dog sled," a sailor heckles) . . . Jeanette MacDonald, emeraled-eyed and titian-tressed, looking like a trailer for Technicolor. . . . Ricardo Cortez signing an autograph for a dowager at Theodore's. . . . Joan Blondell, ankle-deep in mink, ankling into the Stork. . . . Greta Garbo in the last place you'd ever expect to find Garbo—the rowdy Club 18. . . . Harry Hopkins at the Ruban Bleu with his stunningly garbed Louise (It's Smart To Be Nifty) Macy. . . . Hugh Herbert frightening the ducks in Central park.

A STONE'S THROW FROM BROADWAY: Gloria Vanderbilt DiCicco is one glamor girl who doesn't stick to a type—she appeared in the bistros wearing checkered gingham, very 12-year-oldish, on one night, and ultra-slinky black and gold, the next. . . . Jane Froman, who hasn't pedalled a bike since her childhood days, has become so enamored of the one she rides in the finale of the Roxy stage show that she takes it out every afternoon to the parking lot behind the theater, and has an extra workout. . . . With men so scarce, Candy Jones created a sensation by loping into Leon and Eddie's with four men in Khaki. This Is The Army, Missy Jones? . . . Election Night, Mrs. Jum Farley stuck with the Irish. She entertained in the Stork Club for the Finnigans, the Delaneys, the McDermotts and the McKittricks!

FACES IN PLACES: Libby Holman and Clifton Webb in the 1-2-3, stirring memories of their famous "Body and Soul" routine in "Three's A Crowd." . . . Billy Rose and Eleanor Holm holding paws in the Monte Carlo Casino. . . . Adolphe Menjou strolling around vestless—terrible concession for a Best Dressed Man. . . . Lauritz Melchior and Josef Stigetti talking sharps and flats in front of Carnegie hall. . . . Small lady and tall gentleman dancing ever so gracefully at LaMartinique: Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Murray. . . . Nancy Kelly and Arline Judge joining in the community singing at Jimmy Dwyer's Sawdust Trail. . . . Lenore Lemmon, in the lowest-cut black gown ever seen at the Copacabana, requesting Ted Straeter to make the orchestra play "I'm Old Fashioned!"

* * *

THE OWL PATROL: The attractive slim blond listening attentively to Libby Holman's chanting of the poor man's woes at LaVie Parisienne was Doris Duke Cromwell, the multi-millionairess. . . . There's plenty of advance chatter about the new show opening Wednesday night at the 51 Club. Said to be really something. . . . Pat Dane and Dolores Del Rio crossed paths the other evening, but no greetings were spoken. Dolores is the ex-Mrs. Cedric Gibbons; Pat was at one time slated to be the next. . . . Jack Pearl, recently crowned King of Doughnut Dunkers, gave up sinkers temporarily to try out his new set of choppers on a Mayan sirloin steak. . . . Myrus, Cassandra, and Ber-Mar made an occult threesome at the Cotillion Room. Who reads whose mind when they get together?

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — Whether it's punch-drunk with the times or merely playing the old game of follow-the-leader, our town is knocking itself out on these all-star pictures.

Coons

Most of the lots have at least one "colossal" on the cookstove, dramatic or musical, getting ready to dish up celluloid so jam-packed with stars that somewhere in the melange every fan can find his favorite.

"Tales of Manhattan" started it this time, but the "all-star" business is nothing new. Twenty-two years ago C. B. DeMille served a star-studded dish called "The Affairs of Anatole." Many of the names he featured are gone now, or mean little, but for 1920 they were cream of the cream: Wallace Reid, Elliott Dexter, Gloria Swanson, Wanda Hawley, Theodore Roberts, Theodore Kosloff, Raymond Hatton, Agnes Ayres, Monte Blue, Bebe Daniels.

SHOW people at the time raised a question about this mad generosity. Wouldn't the fans, thus spoiled, expect every picture to be equally lavish in casting? Wouldn't they be bored when they saw a movie with merely one star, or two?

Well, the question was answered by Hollywood's continued prosperity through the 'twenties, but it was revived in 1932 when Metro shot their stellar works on "Dinner at Eight" and "Grand Hotel." The fans somehow kept on going to movies, even when they weren't overcrowded with stars.

If ever the question were pertinent, it is today. There've been isolated instances of pictures with many stars ("If I Had a Million," "Alice in Wonderland," etc.) but except for one year when enthusiasm for musicals created "Fox Movietone Follies," "Hollywood Revue," "The Show of Shows" and "Paramount on Parade," there has never been such a star-scrambling as today's.

PARAMOUNT'S entry in "Star Spangled Rhythm," a musical which works into its plot some 70 names including Crosby, Hope, Lamour and others big and little. Warner Bros. is devoting many stages to "Thank Your Lucky Stars," likewise using all its "names" including Bette Davis, together with "outsiders" like Dinah Shore and Eddie Cantor. Universal is in there pitching with "Flesh and Fantasy," Charles Boyer heading the talent roundup for an episode-type drama. Metro's musical of the moment is "DuBarry Was a Lady," Lucille Ball and Red Skelton co-starred, but it looks as if they're saving their all-star ammunition for a women-in-war drama "Cry Havoc." Twentieth Century, of course, started the snowball with "Tales of Manhattan," and the same lot will have Ernst Lubitsch's "Birthday" as a follow-up.

ARMY TO TRAIN ENGINEERS AND DOCTORS SOON

Will Send Soldiers to College For Periods Ranging From 9 to 27 Months.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The war department today planned to start sending thousands of soldiers to college early next year to be trained as doctors, engineers and scientists.

Disclosure was made in a statement from the war department to Rep. Sparkman (D., Ala.), a member of the house military affairs committee and represents the first official outline of a program which had previously been only hinted at by Secretary of War Stimson and other high military officials.

In the statement, the war department asserted that it hopes to have the program underway by Feb. 1. It will be designed to supply both military and civilian needs and, additionally, will have the effect of keeping many universities and colleges open which otherwise might be forced to close for lack of students due to the operation of the impending draft of 18-19 year old youths.

"Men will be selected under this program," the war department said, "on the basis of previous education, results of scholastic aptitude and achievement tests, and under tests of leadership and aptitude for military service.

"Selection will made from the army at large by a system similar to that now in effect for officer candidates schools. Any soldier may compete without regard to his financial status. Preference will be given soldiers in the younger age group.

"The army will maintain those selected while at college. They will be under military control and the army will prescribe the courses to be pursued. The courses will vary in length from nine to 27 months and in the case of medical students will probably extend for a longer period.

"The principal subjects will be medical, and pre-medical, engineering and science."

SEE PASSAGE OF 'TEEN DRAFT

Administration Leaders Say Senate Will Pass Bill Quickly Tomorrow.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Administration leaders expect swift senate approval tomorrow of the 'teen-age draft bill, stripped of a controversial clause which would have required a full year's training before a soldier under 20 could be sent abroad to fight.

With a minimum of debate, the house shouted its approval of the revised bill yesterday after a joint conference committee had eliminated the year's training amendment.

The senate adopted the training provision on Oct. 24—39 to 31—with 26 members either absent or not voting. With elections out of the way and popular enthusiasm aroused by American successes in North Africa, leaders believed the vote could be reversed with ease.

The bill as finally accepted by the house, provides that necessary farm workers, regularly employed, shall be deferred from induction as long as they remain on the farm and "until such time as a satisfactory replacement can be obtained."

High school students of 18 and 19 called up during the last half of the academic year would be eligible for deferment until the end of the semester. Men who had reached their 45th birthday could not be drafted without their consent.

The compromise measure struck out a house provision under which all single men in a given state would have to be called up before any married men could be taken.

Since the supply of 1-A registrants is running low in almost all local draft boards, the youngsters are expected to be called up soon after the bill's passage. Married men who already have received notices to report for physical examination probably will not be affected by the age reduction, however, since November and December draft quotas must be met and from 30 to 40 days will be required to process the new men.

OHIO DEMOCRATS IN CONGRESS TAKE THEIR DEFEAT WITH SMILE

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Ohio Democrats defeated for reelection to the house can take it smiling.

Back at their desks after a disappointing campaign, they are going out of their way to assure colleagues they don't intend to sulk during the remaining weeks of their terms.

There are 12 Democrats now. When the new congress convenes in January there will be only three—Reps. Michael Kirwan, Robert Crosser and Michael A. Feighan, the latter a new member by virtue of his primary victory over Rep. Martin L. Sweeney.

But the others are not wearing long faces. They registered good humor and good sportsmanship as they shook hands with fellow Democrats who tried hard to win.

Representative-at-large Stephen M. Young assured colleagues that the voters' decision, whatever their reasons, was all right with him. He conducted a vigorous campaign in his vain effort to defeat Rep. George Bender (R) for the state's one at-large seat.

Rep. Dow Harter, whose defeat after nearly ten years in the house was one of the big surprises of the election, was the center of much backslapping and handshaking.

Likewise there was nothing to indicate that Harold K. (Happy) Claypool would lose his nickname as a result of an upset victory by his Republican opponent.

Like William R. Thom and other losers, Claypool is going about his business much as if he expected to be in office a long time.

On the other side of the political dividing line of the house, Ohio Republicans beamed with unrestrained pleasure as they congratulated others of their party.

Twenty-strong in the next congress, Buckeye Republicans are planning to set up an organization for discussing legislative and other problems, and particularly to gain the recognition they think a big block of votes deserves.

CALLS MEETING

War Transportation Group Summons Committees.

Members of war transportation committees in Mansfield war industries have been called to an all-embrasive meeting of the Mansfield war transportation board in the Chamber of Commerce assembly at 4 p. m. Thursday.

"There are matters of importance to be studied and we are counting on every man to assist," says Clyde K. Smaltz, board chairman and local administrator for the conservation of vital war transportation.

Many committee members representing various plants attended the instruction school last night at John Simpson Junior high school. Representatives of the gasoline panel of the county rationing board discussed details of the registration of applicants for "B" and "C" rationing books.

Plant committee members recently were directed to survey the needs of war workers in their respective shops in regard to supplemental rationing, and for operation of plant-owned vehicles.

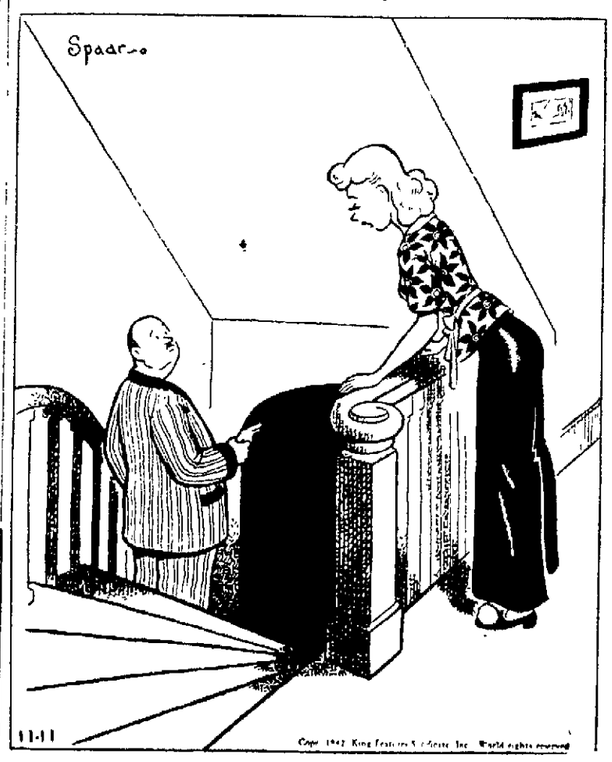
Laff-a-Day



"If I was wrong about the noise, dear, bring me up a little midnight snack!"

It's a worse headache than income tax blanks," Jack Berger, assistant secretary of the Auto club exclaimed today as more motorists continued to come into the club seeking information on gasoline rationing. To make matters worse, the supply of primary questionnaires will be exhausted soon, Berger reported. As a tip to perplexed drivers, Berger said if the serial numbers on the tires can't be seen, the brand name of the tire will be sufficient.

HEALTH CHIEF CITES SCHOOL TEST REPORTS

Diphtheria Carrier Found In Examination of 108 Working in Cafeterias.

Following health examinations of 108 cafeteria workers in Mansfield's three high schools Dr. W. B. Wild, city-county health commissioner, today advocated a more rigid physical examination of all food handlers in commercial eating places and stores handling foodstuffs.

One diphtheria carrier was discovered during the examinations of school workers, Dr. Wild said. Although complete reports have not been received on all laboratory specimens which were submitted to the state health department, the health commissioner declared the other 107 school workers to be entirely free of communicable conditions which would aid the spread of contagious or infectious diseases.

At Senior high school, 47 lunch room workers were examined, 31 at Johnny Appleseed and 27 at Simpson. In addition, all cafeteria workers at the Ontario centralized school, where a near-epidemic of typhoid fever broke out a few weeks ago, have been examined and immunized.

Dr. Wild pointed out that a "good health certificate" several weeks or months old is of little or no value when a worker applies for a position in any commercial food-handling enterprise. He emphasized that examination privileges are available at the health department at any time although stresses that such certificates should be obtained from the applicant's regular family physician.

Rigid requirements are being sought by the government's public health administration, Dr. Wild said, especially as to the washing of dishes and silverware. "Dishes may be washed clean in a soapy water, but if not subjected to prescribed sterilization methods germs will still remain active on the plate or knife or fork," he said.

The commissioner cited that several months ago at a called meeting most of the proprietors of leading eating places in Mansfield and Richland county endorsed the rigid government proposals and generally are complying with them. It is possible, he said, that a compulsory program will be adopted by local boards in the near future.

Pop Gets Still Lower Rating In Maternity Ward

BRIDGEPORT, Conn — (INS) — Pop always was a fifth wheel around the maternity ward of any hospital, but the new war time code of the Connecticut Medical Society definitely puts the proud father in his place—and its way down low on the priority list.

Under rules in force today in the Bridgeport and St. Vincent's hospital, a father is allowed to see his newborn child exactly once during the mother's confinement.

The code also reduces the normal maternity hospitalization from ten to seven days, restricts visiting hours to from 7 to 8 p. m., allows only the father and the grand parents to make visits and eliminates flowers for the mothers.

Reason for the drastic restrictions is to give nurses time for more important duties than taking care of visitors, fathers and flowers.

Mansfield's great all-time All-American football star, Pete Henry, now coaching his alma mater, Washington and Jefferson, in addition to his duties as athletic director, recently won himself a boost in the Pittsburgh Press where Eddie Beachler wrote:

"Wilbur (Pete) Henry is one of the most likeable characters in Pennsylvania college football circles. On a recent trip to Little Washington, Pa., where Henry once prowled as an All-American tackle for Washington and Jefferson, we found Big Pete still maintaining his widespread popularity — and weight too.

"He's up to some 260 pounds, some 35 over his college weight, and 25 over that of his Canton Bulldog pro days.

"And he's plenty tickled over his new post of head coach of his alma mater A gang of fellows idled past the office and hollered a chorus of 'Hi Willie,' and 'Hi Pete,' and 'Hi Fats'."

(Seems Willie and Pete and Fats are one and the same, but each one is big enough to be all three.)

"Henry happened to mention his wife," continues Beachler, "and then was reminded how he happened to get married

"'When I was playing for Canton over there in East Liverpool one day, I hurt my ankle They put me in the hospital and that's where I met her She was such a good nurse I decided she was the gal for me I'll tell her now she got me while I was under ether but she claims it was my aggressiveness that did it But who ever heard of Pete Henry being aggressive?'

"We promptly gave him the addresses of a dozen football teams he has smashed all over the lot, and that ended that," concluded Beachler.

Mansfield high school Tygers are still struggling along without their coach, Paul Snyder, whose illness with influenza kept him away from the practice field last week, and from Canton Fawcett stadium Saturday.

"I was out to see him Monday night," Athletic Director Harry Mehock reports, "and Paul wanted to come back to school on Tuesday. I told him to stay in bed until he got well, that we'd gain nothing by having him back for one day and in bed for another two weeks.

"Confidentially," confided Mehock, "Paul didn't look so good. He's been a very sick man. We'll carry on as best we can."

Dads Get Honors at Last Game

Tygers End Football Season Friday Night.

IT WILL be "Dads Night" at Stadium field Friday night when Mansfield high school's Tygers ring down the curtain on the 1942 football season by meeting Toledo Woodward's Bears.

Fathers of the Mansfield players will sit on the Tyger bench wearing numbers corresponding to those worn by their sons on the gridiron.

The Tygers, attempting to rebound after their unexpectedly bad trimming at Canton McKinley last week, will be out to salvage their fourth victory in a not overly successful season which already lists five defeats.

The kind of football they played against Springfield and Massillon, and in all but the second quarter against Portsmouth can win for them Friday night

Woodward looms as a strong competitor, but not one to be strongly favored in the advance dope Its record, like that of Mansfield has been spotty this season, and the Bears also have played some good, and some bad games.

Last week they had one of their good games as they tied Toledo Scott 7-7, a result that kept Woodward from occupying the cellar in the Toledo city league, and dropped Scott into last place.

Their game was a battle of two strong forward walls, and as a result most of the play was between the two 30-yard stripes. Scott scored on a break in the first quarter when a bad pass from center put the ball back on the Woodward 10-yard line, and on the next play a blocked punt was recovered for a Scott touchdown.

* * *

Woodward had all the best of the play in the second period, and completed a 30-yard march with a touchdown on a spot pass

Rickey Wants Dolph Camilli

NEW YORK — (INS) — Branch Rickey, president and general manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers is on record on this Armistice day as wishing no contract war with his star first baseman Dolf Camilli who recently told (INS) on the Pacific Coast he wanted his release from the team

In a statement that sounds like the forerunner of "triple talk" Rickey said yesterday

"The statement of Dolf Camilli as reported in the press is not unkind to Brooklyn or anyone. He has played major league baseball for nine years and has done a good job of it. He is entitled to quit if he wants to quit and I congratulate him on having come to the place where he feels no pressure to do whatever he does not want to do.

"Camilli is a better player than the figures indicate. He's a good team man and a gentleman and Brooklyn will miss him I will be downright sorry if he is not with us I hope the report is over stated and that Camilli will be with the Dodgers next season

Two Tournaments Booked For Pros

CHICAGO —(INS)— With only two tournaments scheduled for the winter the Professional Golfers' association made wartime plans today for one of the most abbreviated tours of its history.

The only two tournaments definitely scheduled are the Miami open in Florida and the North and South in Pinehurst, N. C., both set for December. The four California tourneys and the Masters' in Augusta, Ga., have been cancelled, and Phoenix, Ariz., has indicated it will be unable to entertain the western open in February.

Reports read at the opening session of the two-day annual meeting disclosed that the PGA has contributed $250,000 to war relief this year and that 198 members out of a total of 1 824 have entered the armed forces.

Illini Win On Thievery

Ball Stealing Antics Have Buckeyes Worried.

By ARNOLD DERLITZKI

CHICAGO —(AP)— Illinois' ball stealing Illini, grown adept at scoring touchdowns in this manner, may go on to steal a share of the Western Conference football championship this week.

They will meet powerful Ohio State at Cleveland's Municipal Stadium Saturday and a victory would be in keeping with the surprising Illini's first season under Ray Eliot.

Yet success may depend entirely on a fondness for their pet trick-ball stealing. In virtually every other respect Ohio State was given the edge.

Statistics released today by the Big Ten bureau showed that the Buckeyes, led by Gene Fekete and Paul Sarringhaus, not only were averaging twice as much total yardage a game as the Illini (352 to 176), but excelled at defense, too, where they were second to Minnesota.

Only at forward passing did Illinois hold an edge. And this could be attributed to the fact that the Buckeyes, with one of the strongest running games in the nation, often did not need to resort to passes.

That Illinois is proficient enough at ball grabbing will be attested to by both Minnesota and Northwestern. Against the Gophers, Alex Agase, a guard, stole a Minnesota ball and raced to a touchdown. Elmer Engel, an end duplicated the feat against Northwestern.

Wisconsin Badgers, who had been rolling up yards at the rate of 290 a game until the Iowa Hawkeyes slowed them last week, continued to be the Big Ten's No. 2 team in total offense but their average is a full 112 yards under that of the steamrolling Buckeyes.

Individual rushing honors were monopolized by Ohio State and Wisconsin ball carriers. Gene Fekete of Ohio State led with an average of 110 yards a game, followed by Pat Harder. Wisconsin, 81, Paul Sarringhaus, Ohio State, 77, and Elroy Hirsch Wisconsin, 68

That said petition avers that certain real estate was conveyed to said plaintiff by deed recorded Richland County Deed Records, Volumes 139, Page 68, which said deed contained the following description, to-wit:

Situate in the State of Ohio, County of Richland and City of Mansfield, and known as Lot Number Twenty-two (22) Auditors Plat, being a part of the northwest quarter section twenty-two (22) township twenty-one (21), range eighteen (18), commencing at the intersection of the south line of Orange Street with the west line of Newman Street, thence west along the south line of Orange Street four hundred and thirty-three feet (433) thence south one hundred and eighty-seven feet (187 ft.) to the right of way of switch track of the Pennsylvania, Ft. Said petition further prays that plaintiff's title may be quieted in and to said real estate as described in said corrected description.

The defendants will take notice that said cause will stand for hearing on and after the 28th day of Dec 1942.

PAM— Her Plan. By A. W. Brewerton

I'M SO GLAD TO KNOW YOU'RE GETTING ALONG SO WELL, COLONEL CAREY--THAT MISS LUCY IS DOING ALL RIGHT!
IT'S CERTAINLY GOOD TO SEE YOU, PAMELA! SWELL OF YOU TO DROP IN 11-11
WELL, I CAME IN TO TELL YOU OF A LITTLE IDEA I HAD! Y'SEE I'M SUPPOSED TO BE HUNTING FOR A JOB, AND GOING OUT EVERY DAY AND PRETENDING TO DO THAT IS GETTING VERY DIFFICULT —THEY MAY BE TRAILING ME—WATCHING ME, YOU SEE. SO—
KNOWING SHE CAN TRUST THE COLONEL, PAM CONFIDES FURTHER ABOUT HER PRESENT ASSIGNMENT
SO I THOUGHT I'D TELL THEM I'D FOUND A PLACE AS FILE CLERK - SOMETHING LIKE THAT - IN A LAWYER'S OFFICE, AND I COULD COME HERE EVERY DAY FOR A WHILE
...AND REALLY HELP MISS LUCY - IF SHE NEEDS IT - THOUGH YOU SAID SHE---
PAMELA, THOSE WORDS ARE MUSIC TO MY EARS! I'LL CONFESS THAT I WAS PRETENDING. REALLY, I'VE BEEN IN A MESS EVER SINCE YOU LEFT!

NAVY UNITS HARASS JAPS

Prowl Seas at Guadalcanal To Block Reinforcements For Enemy Troops.

ese are outnumbered and are reluctant to fight the American ground units without new reinforcements.

The statement made by Lieut Gen. Thomas Holcomb, commandant of the marine corps that "things are shaping up" to cut off the enemy's flow of reinforcements apparently referred to the arrival of the small U. S. naval units.

Holcomb explained that "the Tokyo express"—a flotilla of one cruiser and four destroyers—was slipping in every few nights to land about 900 additional Japanese troops on Guadalcanal. The latest navy communiques have made no mention of the arrival of enemy reinforcements on the battle-scarred island.

The absence of news from the battle zone indicated that the Japanese may have momentarily stopped sending the flotillas into waters near Guadalcanal because of the presence of the small U S naval units Only a few days ago, the daring American torpedo boats halted two enemy destroyers and crippled one of the warships

Holcomb, who has just completed a trip to Guadalcanal, reported that the American forces have "great numerical superiority," but he declined to give figures. He warned, however, that the Japs still have large forces in other parts of the south and central Pacific areas

EACH DAY OF THE WEEK ..... TO .....

On Page 1 of the paper each day you will find a list of the advertisements to be checked that day.

All you have to do is to decide each day which Large Ad, which Medium Ad and which Small Ad you think will do the advertiser the most good. Just write three names on this blank each day.

$750.00 in awards go to those readers whose selections are nearest to what the majority of readers think. Every week is a separate survey with a dozen or more cash awards each week.

Every member of any family may send in one answer each week and there are many awards each week, but only one award for a good answer will go to any one family in any one week.

I THINK THESE ADS WILL DO THE ADVERTISERS THE MOST GOOD.

	LARGE ADS	MEDIUM ADS	SMALL ADS
Sun.
Mon.
Tues.
Wed.
Thurs.

You are NOT required to write a letter to receive an award.

The awards are decided on the selections above. We would really appreciate it though if you would write a note saying what you DO NOT LIKE and . . . also . . . WHY YOU LIKED some of the good ads.

We sincerely want your suggestions and ideas of how we may improve our advertising service for your benefit. Write your letter in your own way! It's the thoughts and suggestions that matter. You are not being "judged" by your letters. Actually they have nothing to do with the awards . . . but . . . they will be helpful by giving additional information to our merchants.

Your criticisms and suggestions will be given to the merchants to help them to improve their advertisements BUT the merchants will NOT be given the names of those who write the letters. This is so you may say just what you really think without embarrassment.

Axis Overruns France, Troops Invade Tunisia

Hitler Scraps Armistice as AEF Races For Cleanup In North Africa; French Ask Casablanca Terms, Report.

excuse for Axis troop action, said Tunis, the capital city, "has been attacked by United States troops since Wednesday morning," and declared that the garrison there was resisting.

Axis forces already were there. An Allied headquarters spokesman said Nazi combat planes and air-borne soldiers had been moved into Tunisia "for some little time." BBC said Italian marines had occupied the Tunisian port of Bizerte, and other reports told of German parachutist landings.

Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's powerful AEF was racing for a clean-up in Algeria and French Morocco.

French defenders of the key Atlantic port of Casablanca were reported to have asked for an armistice today after their defenses were shelled from the sea, dive-bombed from the air and assaulted by armored columns from the land.

From Algiers other American columns were reported striking southwest toward Tunisia and Libya, but a spokesman at the Allied headquarters said he did not know whether American or British troops were in Tunisia.

German and Italian troops alike moved into southern France while Marshal Petain, the hero of Verdun and the tired old man of Vichy, protested sadly and in vain.

Hitler sought to undercut whatever resistance the French might yet offer. In a lengthy message to Petain he posed as France's friend. In a message to Frenchmen he cast himself in the role of their guardian against American attack upon Corsica and the French south coast.

"The German government has known for 24 hours that plans of these operations (in North Africa) provide that the next attack will be made against Corsica, in order to occupy that island, and against the south coast of France," he said.

German troops swept past Vichy and Italians moved in along the Riviera coast.

Italy showed her mounting alarm by ordering civilians out of her Ligurian seacoast from Genoa to La Spezia opposite Corsica.

British and American spokesmen appealed by radio for French merchant seamen in the Mediterranean to sail to Algiers or Gibraltar—or to scuttle their ships rather than see them fall to Germany and Italy.

Its whereabouts unknown, the sizable French battleship squadron stationed since the armistice at Toulon also was a coveted prize. Some reports indicated earlier this week that the ships had slipped from port. Unconfirmed reports were heard in Bern that they were on their way to join the Allies.

The German radio broadcast stern warnings to the French and alleged that the French government had issued an order that "no resistance be offered to the German advance."

Berlin broadcasts indicated that the German rush toward the south coast was being made in columns headed through Lyon and Limoges. Soon after the movement started Germans reached the outskirts of Vichy, but did not immediately enter the provisional capital which Hitler said now could be abandoned for Versailles, near Paris.

British military experts estimated that Hitler had more than 30 divisions—almost a half million men—in France from which to send forces south.

Besides guarding the back of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's broken force in Libya, the Axis move into Tunisia was regarded as a desperate effort to beat the Allies to control of central Mediterranean at its narrowest strait, the 90-mile wide waterlane between Sicily and Cape Bon, Tunisia.

The terms of the Compiegne forest armistice were violated by Hitler's order for a sweep by Nazi troops through unoccupied France and Marshal Petain protested quickly to German Field Marshal Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt. A Vichy radio broadcast appealed to the French people to rally behind the aged Petain.

Quick collapse of all remaining resistance in French North Africa and reentry of a reborn France into the war against the Axis were regarded in London as possible results.

Fighting French quarters expressed belief that not only the entire colonial army but the French fleet and a great array of political leaders as well might come into the Allied fold as the culmination of swift-moving events of the past 72 hours.

The latest unofficial word heard in London was that main units of the French fleet, which includes three battleships, seven cruisers and 25 destroyers, were still at Toulon this morning as motorized German divisions pushed southward.

One arm of the German forces headed directly toward Marseille, France's major Mediterranean port, and Toulon, her major naval base, by way of Lyon.

Italy said she was in full agreement with Germany on the necessity for this action on the 24th anniversary of the World war armistice, and Fascist forces moved into France.

For Italy, the occupation probably will mean even greater domination by the senior Axis partner, London diplomatic sources said. Communication lines of the French Riviera, however, will aid the Axis military movements.

A British military source said that there had been no evidence lately of any reinforcement of the Nazi army in northern France and that this indicated all troops engaged in the new action would be drained out of the section occupied in 1940.

Allied broadcasters capitalized on the Nazi thrust.

BBC spokesmen appealed to French merchant seamen in the Mediterranean to sail to Algiers or Gibraltar or to scuttle their vessels.

Instructions were once broadcast asking that the French people demonstrate, but this was countermanded later by a Fighting French authority, who advised them to just attend church Armistice day services.

Virtually the last obstacles to British-American recognition of the refugee French cabinet vanished.

There was no longer the necessity, as described by Secretary Hull, to maintain the pretense of recognizing Vichy.

Defection to the Allies of the French General Henri Honore Giraud and possibly other eminent soldiers and statesmen, some already in North Africa, would provide the broad basis which some quarters maintain Gen. Charles De Gaulle has always lacked for a broad government in London.

Axis radio broadcasts announced the developments on this 24th anniversary of the first World war armistice.

By railway coaches and motor trucks, grey-uniformed units of the Nazi army of the west sped southward across the demarcation line. Contingents moved from near Chalon-Sur-Saone toward Lyon the Rhone valley and Marseille.

The necessity for moving into the unoccupied zone was largely blamed upon Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, the veteran French officer who escaped from Nazi imprisonment and is establishing a French North African army with U. S. aid to fight alongside the Allies.

Hitler assailed Giraud bitterly in his message to Petain as a French general who "during his captivity simulated illness" in order to escape and had decided "not only to fight from now on against Germany in the services of the Anglo-Saxon nations, the authors of the aggression, but also against his own country."

Despite Hitler's protestations that the occupation was to be temporary and was not to interfere with Petain's government, Allied sources in London forecast that he was fastening a hold that could be broken only by defeat.

Repeated exhortations by Petain to Vichy leaders in North Africa to maintain resistance were interpreted here as a desperate effort to stave off complete occupation.

"The Vichy government is dead and we are going back to June, 1940," a Fighting French spokesman said. "The only vestige of Vichy left will be some French officials in Versailles carrying out German orders."

Hitler said that the Petain government "will be free to move without limitation in the whole of France" and announced that previous objections to a transfer to Versailles, near Paris, were lifted.

The Fighting French spokesman said the most important result of the Nazi movement "will be the uniting of France and waking up of the people in the Vichy zone, who have been living in a fools' paradise for two years. . . . except for French Indo-China, the French empire is all back in the war."

An Allied government source said that Petain "probably will protest and resign."

"But it won't matter whether he resigns or not if the government is headed by Pierre Laval, Jacques Doriot or Marcel Deat," he added. "It would be the merest puppet."

Laval was reported earlier to have left Vichy, presumably summoned by Hitler to receive an ultimatum on account of the capitulation of Algiers and the precarious situation of the remainder of French North Africa.

Some Allied military men, who cannot be quoted by name, said the Nazi leader had to make some gesture in reply to the Allies' successes and that his new move was dictated also by genuine military necessity.

They estimated that the occupation would tie down an additional 15 divisions of German troops when they were badly needed on the Russian front and in the remainder of occupied Europe.

But, one said, "he dared not leave the French Mediterranean coast unguarded with the Allies in possession of the French North African coast."

The first word of the action came in a broadcast by the Paris radio.

Nazi armored cars were reported to have passed through Limoges and Lyon at 10 a. m. and uniformed Germans appeared in Vichy's suburbs.

DeGaulle Asks French Join Fight

LONDON — (AP) — General Charles De Gaulle called on the French people today to join the fight against Hitler.

"Seize the few hours which still are left to you to come if you can, to join those who fight by the side of the Allies," the Fighting French leader said in a broadcast over BBC.

"Officers, non-commissioned officers, soldiers, airmen, with your ships, your planes, your arms, hasten to join the Free French forces. Do not leave your arms in the hand of the enemy. Victory is certain. Come and join in it."

Italians Claim Allied Ships Hit

ROME (From Italian Broadcasts)—(AP)—A communique from the Italian high command claimed today that Italian torpedo-carrying planes sank one Allied cruiser, damaged another and presumably sank a 15,000-ton cargo ship in attacks against British and American naval formations off of Algiers.

The communique also asserted that the Algiers airdrome had been bombed "with great success," starting large fires.

German pilots hit "numerous" other warships and merchant vessels, the Italian announcement said. One British Hurricane was reported shot down, and a Spitfire crashed in flames near the island of Sapienza, south of Navarino.

Military movements on the Egyptian front "continued according to plan," the Rome statement announced.

PAYS TRIBUTE TO WAR VETS

joined by "large numbers of the fighting men of our traditional ally, France."

"American soldiers," he said, "are giving their lives today in all the continents and on all the seas in order that the dream of the Unknown Soldiers may at last come true. All the heroism and all the unconquerable devotion that free men and women are showing in this war shall make certain the survival and advancement of civilization."

Mansfield paused today and with prayer and pledge called for a rededication to the task of carrying on the fight for human liberty for which World War II is being fought in a world-wide conflict.

Today's observance will close with a patriotic parade at 8 p. m. sponsored by McVey Post, American Legion and servicemen's organizations of past wars, auxiliaries, civilian defense units and civic and fraternal societies. The parade follows a dinner at the Legion home for members of veterans' organizations and friends.

Urging Americans today to learn a lesson from the last war when the peace was "lost after the war," Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston, speaking at ceremonies at 11 a. m. today at the Doughboy monument in Central park, said the nation now must set its face firmly and win both the war and the peace."

Soldiers had a promise in the last war that they were fighting for the preservation of democracy and permanent peace, but "they came home to find that demagogues had forgotten the promise and were ready to do business as usual," Judge Huston said.

"Let's condemn openly those who criticize the conduct of the war. Leave the running of the war to the men in charge of it. We have too many swivel-chair and skirted generals," he continued.

Judge Huston, a major in the first World war, said the nation must forget about making dollars in war-time be unselfish and recognize all peoples of the world regardless of race and color, if they are interested in peace and democracy.

Mrs. Martha S. Gardner, chaplain of the American Legion auxiliary, placed a wreath at the foot of the Doughboy monument. The Legion firing squad saluted the war dead with three volleys and Virgil Hageman of the Legion post sounded taps as the park program ended.

C. O. Lister, commander of McVey post, American Legion, presided during the ceremonies. James Brownscombe, another Legionnaire, gave the prayer in the absence of Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, Legion chaplain.

Throughout the city store and factory workers paused for a two-minute period at 11 a. m.—the armistice hour of 24 years ago—silently pledging a greater effort in the successful prosecution of the current conflict.

Prayer services which started at 10 a. m. in the First Presbyterian church were to conclude at 1 p. m. All Protestant churches of the city and county were participating.

Tonight's parade will form with the head of column resting at Park avenue west and Marion avenue. Route of march will be east to Central park, around the square and north on Main street, west on Fourth street, south on Mulberry street and west on Park avenue to the Legion home.

Participating with the Legion drum corps will be the Mansfield Senior high school band, CIO local 711 band, Madison high school band and Crestline high school band.

During the morning pupils of Brinkerhoff school dedicated a flagpole donated by the Parent-Teacher association. Children with relatives in the armed forces especially participated under direction of a committee composed of Lucy Ann Smith, Dorothy Yeingst and Bettie Bauman. The presentation was made by Ed Davison and Waldo German.

At Ontario similar ceremonies were carried out by the Springfield township centralized school.

Enemy Retreat Blocked as Armored Column Strikes Through to Solum.

Allied planes, including American units meanwhile were striking ahead of the enemy. Fighter units the communique said, patroled eastern Cyrenaica yesterday, and fought above the fortress of Tobruk, 90 miles northwest of the border, shooting down two enemy planes.

During the night of Monday and Tuesday, Allied heavy and medium bombers blasted enemy transport concentrated around Solum. The same night, Allied torpedo planes attacked enemy naval units in the central Mediterranean and claimed two hits on a cruiser the communique reported.

Allied planes struck at Axis airdromes on Sardinia 100 miles off Tunisia, Monday and Tuesday night. Four planes failed to return, the communique said.

in Russian breasts?" he continued, "why did you agree with the United States and Russia to a communique which spoke of a second front in Europe in 1942?

"I must say quite frankly that I told it perfectly justifiable to deceive the enemy even if, at the same time, our own people are for a time misled . . .

"But there is one thing, however, which you must never do—that is, to mislead your allies. You must never make a promise which you do not fulfill. I hope that we shall show that we have lived up to that standard."

Echoing the heartening words of King George VI in convoking this new session of Britain's war parliament, the prime minister hailed the smashing of the Axis' African army as "a British victory of the first order."

Churchill announced that he would discuss not only "the great battle of Egypt" but also "the other half of the combination, namely United States and British intervention in North Africa."

The British divisions which reinforced the eighth army for the desert battle left England in May and early June, the prime minister disclosed. Most of the six-pounder guns, which were used by the hundreds, were sent before the fall of Tobruk, he said.

That also applied to "heavily-armed tanks," he added, paying tribute to "the generous way in which the United States send supplies."

As an example, he related that President Roosevelt sent "admirable" General Shermans—medium U. S. tanks—when Tobruk fell, withdrawing them from American soldiers to whom they had been issued.

American ships in convoy bore them east, he said, sailing direct to Suez in early July and carrying also 105mm. guns as the United States' answer to the high velocity 88mm. cannon of the Nazis.

One ship of that precious convoy was sunk by a U-boat, Churchill said, but immediately and unsolicited the United States replaced it with another loaded with an equal number of weapons.

To his critics, he replied that he was "not one of those who need to be prodded . . . My difficulties rather lie in finding patience and self-restraint through many anxious weeks for a result to be achieved."

Emphasizing that the Axis' losses "have been very heavy" in all the Egyptian fighting and that Hitler "could not have found a worse place to lose a battle," Churchill enumerated these consequences:

The Nazi air effort against Russia "was definitely affected in all these last three months."

U-boat activities in the Mediterranean "have been considerably reduced."

One in every three of the Axis' ships "with the seriously needed cargoes have gone to the bottom of the sea and the resources of German and Italian shipping are most severely strained."

The African campaign was "the most effective means we have yet had of drawing a portion of the enemy's strength and wrath away from Russia upon ourselves."

King George VI opened a new session of parliament today with an address from the throne declaring that Britain was determined to "fight on to complete victory with no thought of parley."

Whatever the future may hold, he said, he was confident that his people would "respond wholeheartedly to every new demand made upon them."

FDR Warns Axis of More Offensives

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Axis powers had a warning from President Roosevelt today that the American campaign in North Africa is no bar to future offensives elsewhere.

Where or when they might come, he naturally did not disclose. But he told a press conference late yesterday that the limiting factors for a big offensive no longer are in operation.

These factors, as Mr. Roosevelt outlined them, centered in the problems of large-scale production of weapons, the training of adequate military forces, and the transportation of men and equipment to fighting fronts.

Chronologically, the chief executive explained how plans for the African campaign developed, how the points of attack were decided last July, and the approximate date set last August. There was no thought of the election at the time, he said in reply to a question.

It can be assumed, the president said, that our fighting Allies were consulted before anything was done. He said, too, that details had been mapped out before Churchill went to Moscow to confer with Joseph Stalin.

At one point, the chief executive indicated that the raid on Dieppe, as well as other actions throughout the world, had a bearing on the plans for the American attack in Africa. He did not explain how they fitted into the picture, however.

Past State President William P. Witherald of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, will be a guest at the Mansfield lodge tonight at its regular meeting, it was announced today by A. J. Eglesberg, secretary.

GAS RATIONING STARTS DEC. 1

OPA Sets Date After Order Delays Registration Until Next Week.

tomorrow in the Mansfield-Leland hotel for preliminary study of their duties. This board will review questionable application for supplemental gas rations.

Concurrently, war plant committees will meet with the Mansfield war transportation board in the Chamber of Commerce assembly to study the registration of plant workers and other matters of gas-rationing significance. Clyde K. Smaltz, local administrator for the conservation of vital war transportation and board chairman, will preside.

At last night's school more than 200 registrars and committee members heard Nelson Neff, county rationing board chairman, explain phases of supplemental rationing.

Spreng announced today that registration for supplemental gas rations will be held the week of Nov. 23. This includes commercial vehicles and those desiring certificates of war necessity.

Local rationing officials today renewed their warning to car owners to speed up their tire turning in as no A books will be issued to persons owning in excess of five tires per passenger car when they register Nov. 18-20. Up to yesterday approximately 2,000 tires had been turned in in Mansfield to the Railway Express agency, collection agent for the OPA.

Yesterday's postponement of this week's scheduled program was due, the OPA announced, to wartime congestion of the country's transportation system which made it impossible to maintain delivery schedules on more than a third of a billion pieces of printed matter necessary to put the program into effect. The entire nation other than eastern states which went under rationing restrictions last summer, is affected.

CHIEF OF ARMY ORDNANCE DIES

Native Ohioan Credited With Many Important Advances.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Major Gen. William Crozier 87, chief of the army's bureau of ordnance in the first World war, died at his home today after a short illness.

Crozier was recognized as one of the world's leading experts in ordnance development and was given credit for many of the advances made during the last quarter of a century.

Born in Carrollton, O., in 1855, he was graduated from West Point in 1876.

cupied the Tunisian naval base at Bizerte.)

Allied submarine and air activity flared against Italian naval units in the Mediterranean engaged in maneuvers, the nature of which was not disclosed.

The admiralty said a British submarine scored two torpedo hits in a successful attack on three cruisers and three destroyers east of Sicily. Torpedo aircraft based in Egypt were said to have scored two hits on another cruiser in the same general area, while yesterday the admiralty reported a torpedo hit by a submarine on yet another cruiser.

Bizerte in Tunisia is the best and largest naval base in French North Africa and is about 40 miles from Tunis, the capital. The Tunisian coast is about 130 miles from Sicily, the shortest distance between French North Africa and Italy.

There was still no official information here as to the movements of the French fleet. But the major part was believed still based at Toulon toward which Adolf Hitler's troops were striking in Vichy, France today.

British observers believed that an armistice for the entire area of Morocco and Algeria would follow speedily.

Hitler's move into Tunisia aimed as a counterstroke to Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's American and British North African occupations. Placed the Germans in momentary command of the narrowest point of the Mediterranean. A large Germany-Italian air center is at Sicily.

The landing also drove a thin wedge between Eisenhower and Marshal Erwin Rommel's defeated Axis army in Libya.

Fighting Frenchmen also were optimistic.

"It is felt that resistance may well collapse altogether at a much earlier stage than was at first thought possible," a Fighting French spokesman said.

Overnight reports indicated a steady expansion of the holdings of Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's forces.

French light naval units which attempted to interfere with American seizure of the Oran naval base were destroyed by a supporting British naval squadron, a British correspondent wrote from the field.

The 35,000-ton battleship Jean Bart, bomb-scarred center of this resistance, was reported aflame off the harbor.

This maritime effort directed by U. S. Rear Admiral H. K. Hewitt was correlated with infiltration of Casablanca's eastern suburbs by the tank-supported troops commanded by Maj. Gen. George S. Patton, jr.

Field dispatches from Algeria told of the capture of 800 prisoners without resistance by an armored column which struck at an airdrome Sunday.

French civilians and Arabs alike were described as friendly. American troops shared their cigarets.

NEW METHODS DEFEAT LACK OF MATERIALS

Industry, Hit By Shortage, Develops New Ways To Meet War's Demands.

(By United Press)

DETROIT—Scarcity of critical materials is the biggest bottleneck along the war production front today.

The automotive industry's top engineering talent, forewarned of impending shortages by Production Chief Donald M. Nelson, are working tirelessly to dig up new materials, regardless of expense, so that the output of arms may be kept at near-capacity.

Although there has been encouraging progress on this problem, a few plants already have been forced to curtail operations because of the limited amount of materials available for operation. For example, a steel shortage forced one large producer of guns, a former passenger car builder, to reduce its work week from seven to five days per week.

The pinch on materials is having repercussions throughout the industry as war plants move into production "ahead of schedule" and consume vital metals quicker than had been anticipated. Meantime, the industry's technicians have heeded the plea of Nelson to "make more and more with less and less."

Here are some examples:

With the outbreak of war the Army decided it needed thousand of giant searchlights to pierce the skies for enemy planes. Faced with a shortage of aluminum, an automotive company re-designed and re-engineered the lights, saving 700 pounds of the strategic metal in ever searchlight. How was it done? By substituting steel stampings for aluminum castings. Moreover, the newly designed light actually is lighter than the aluminum type.

In the manufacture of an anti-aircraft cannon, a laboratory discovery thus far has saved 420,000 pounds of nickel and 257,000 pounds of chromium on one part alone.

A saving of 3,000,000 pounds of aluminum already has been achieved in the manufacture of a shell clip by changing from a die casting to a sheet stamping. Although sheet steel is used extensively in peacetime, it has relatively few wartime functions.

Still another company saved 41,000 pounds of nickel on its contract for a small combat vehicle.

Besides seeking new methods and material for pushing the war program, the industry is doing its part in the metal scrap salvage program designed to keep the steel mills operating at peak capacity. During June alone it uncovered more than 100,000 tons of scrap.

Greenland was a republic until 1261, when the colonists swore allegiance to the king of Norway.

TURKEYS GO QUICK

AUSTIN, Tex. — (U.P.) — Most of Texas' turkey supply will be marketed for Thanksgiving dinners this year, a canvass by agricultural statisticians has revealed. Usually the bulk of the supply has gone to the Christmas trade. Army camps are expected to create a huge local demand. The crop is estimated now at 3,724,000 birds.

That Extra Something!

...You can spot it every time

SPECIALIZING in any job is important. And, it takes only one taste of ice-cold Coca-Cola to tell you that its makers have specialized in refreshment for years. They created this utterly different drink 57 years ago. Today it's still individual—and delightfully so.

Note the difference in taste. You can sense the special blend of flavors. Sip again. Your thirst is gone before you know it, but something else arrives. This is refreshment. And it's refreshment that goes into energy—quickly—pleasantly.

When you've finished, you know you've enjoyed a drink made to a standard of quality, not to a standard of price. Folks the country over feel the same way about it. They appreciate the genuine... the real thing... Coke... Coca-Cola.

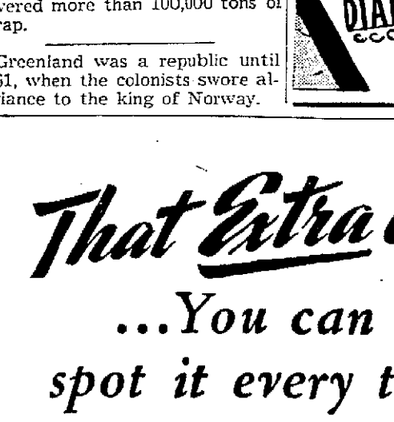
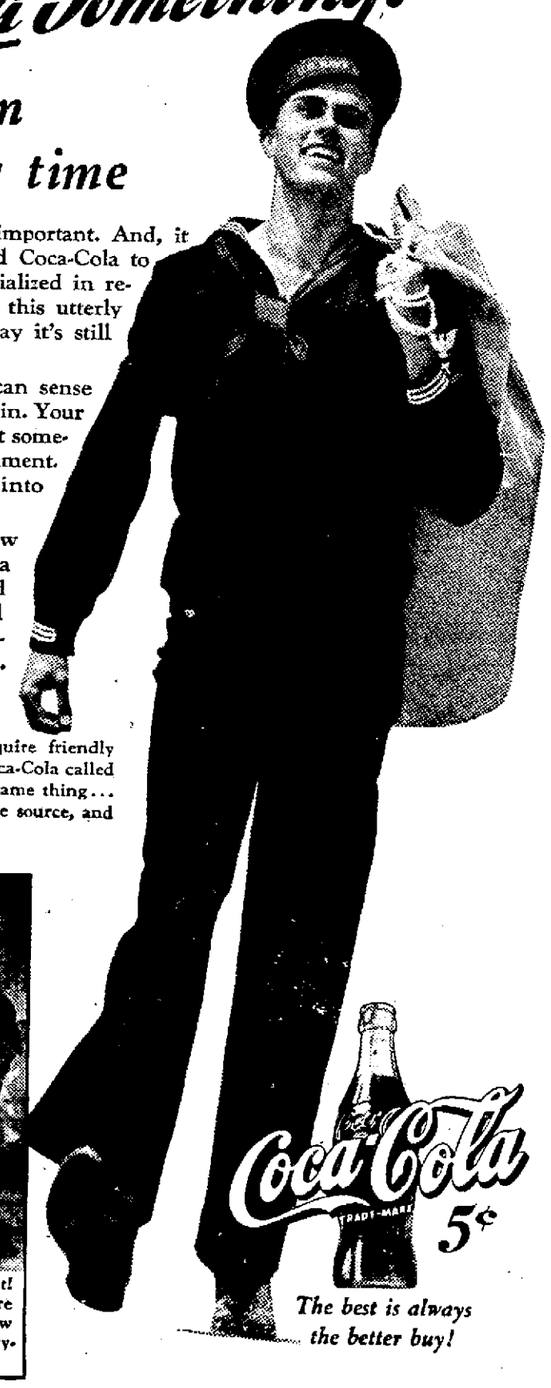
It's natural for popular names to acquire friendly abbreviations. That's why you hear Coca-Cola called Coke. Coca-Cola and Coke mean the same thing... the real thing..."coming from a single source, and well known to the community".



Boy and girl, recreation and refreshment! There's two for company and two more for happiness and satisfaction. You know refreshment's first name, of course. Everybody knows Coke.



The best is always the better buy!

Armistice Day

By WALTER KIERNAN, International News Service Staff Writer.

Thought For the Day: We Are Fighting on God's Side.

Two minutes of silence
Two minutes of prayer
Two minutes of tribute
To those "over there."

Neat white crosses dot green fields
(Headlines say the Nazis yield!)
Poppies in Flanders, remember Verdun?
(Second front open, attack has begun!)

Two minutes of peace
In a world at war,
Two minutes of quiet
Then big guns roar.

Eleven a. m. and hold your fire
(Casablanca resists, Nazis retire)
We won the war and we lost the peace
(Algiers quits and losses decrease).

Church bells ring
And bow your head
Two minutes is little
To honor the dead.

The Real France Will Understand

RESTORATION of freedom to France, and undisturbed possession of French African colonies, are among the objectives of the present drive of United Nations forces into northwest Africa—and this purpose will be understood and appreciated by all loyal Frenchmen.

France, as it is thought of by the people of America and Great Britain, is the France that existed before the Nazi invaders occupied a part of it and forced Hitler rule on Vichy. It is the France in which much of the fighting was done in the first World war—or that part of the present World war that came before the armistice—and which fought so valiantly on the side of the Allies at that time.

It is not that France which has now broken relations with the United States and which expresses resentment over the help that is being given to restoration of the real France.

It is the spokesmen and the hirelings of Hitler who are attempting to make loyal Frenchmen believe that unfriendly acts are being committed by one-time allies.

But, as President Roosevelt said yesterday: "No act of Hitler or any of his puppets can sever relations between the American people and the people of France. We have not broken relations with the French. We never will."

The French people are no more content to live under Nazi domination than the people of the United States or England would be, and they await only an opportunity to resume the struggle in which they were pitifully inadequate when the Nazi hordes were plunging toward Paris.

It has been forbidden that Frenchmen take any part in observance of this Armistice day, but if they, and their countrymen in African possessions, join to the extent of their potential power in supporting the cause of the United Nations, the time may not be long until a free France can again join with liberty-loving people of the world in joyful acclaim of a more permanent peace than came on this date in 1918.

'All Is Confusion' Once Again

NOW it's gasoline rationing that's to be postponed until ration books, need of which was foreseen months ago, can be printed and distributed.

Registration dates, already having been once changed, and recently much publicized as Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, have again been moved forward—this time to Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week—November 18, 19 and 20.

The whole thing will probably remind Henry Brunner, Wellington Leonard and others of Mansfield's earlier newspaper men, of an incident of the 1913 Dayton flood period when a cub reporter on the Shield was sent to Dayton for an eye witness story of conditions.

Nothing was heard from the "staff man" during the first day on the Dayton scene, but on the second day of his absence, when concern began to be felt for his safety, a message came through from him. It read, "All is confusion—no story."

And that quite adequately describes the present situation as to gasoline rationing—and the ineptness of handling in Washington may also justify pulling out of the archives for present application, that trite old saying, "Too many cooks spoil the broth."

Each Season Has Its Beauty

THERE are compensations for almost everything. The northerner finds it sad to see the leaves falling from the trees, but their dying beauty makes up for it. Eternal greenness would lose its charm. Fall blasts bring an occasional shiver, but they blow away summer's lethargy, stimulate physical activity, make work easier and enhance fireside pleasures. A field of snow is as lovely as a meadow full of flowers. Nearly all change is good in its own time. Even an occasional change for the worse gives a person, by contrast, more appreciation of his blessings.

Next to pain, perhaps the worst thing in life is monotony. Right now most people can't have much to complain of on that score.

Official Washington announced that coupon 28 in the sugar rationing book would be the first one used for coffee rationing—until some school child happened to notice that No. 28 couldn't be torn off until No. 27 had been removed.

The word is gradually being permitted to drift through to the people of Italy that the war is going badly for them—as some had already guessed.

Think again—would you be willing to sacrifice the things that will be done with money contributed to the War Chest?

History may record that everything was going along nicely for Hitler until he slipped on a Russian steppe.

Folks whose salary is being cut to $25,000 are finding it difficult to arouse public sympathy.

ADOLF CAN'T COME RIGHT NOW. HE'S BUSY

Argentina Wavering as Neutral

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—President Ramon Castillo's government of Argentine Republic shows signs of weakening in its policy of such resolute neutrality in the present war situation as almost to amount to an unsympathetic slant in the Axis direction. At any rate, it has had several Axis agents arrested recently and expelled two or three of them from the country.

Undoubtedly taking it for granted, with considerable reason, that they were welcome to do whatever they pleased under the Castillo regime, these folk probably became so obvious with their activities as to have become troublesome even to the neutrality-wedded administration.

However, it may have been rather willing to make a few examples, for the rest of the Americas' edification.

Being one of the only two new world nations not to have, at least, broken relations with the Axis powers, not to mention declaring outright war, like a number of the others, certainly got the Buenos Aires rulership unpleasantly talked about throughout the Western Hemisphere. With Chile similarly situated, possibly this wasn't so bad.

Chile Getting Tough.

Now, though, Chilean President Juan Antonio Rios is cracking down so vigorously upon Axis representatives on his side of the Andes as to give the impression that he's about to join the Pan-American majority, leaving Argentina rather too conspicuously alone to be comfortable. President Rios has sided with the anti-Axis democracies all along, anyway, but he only lately was elected.

Assuming that he plans an early break of Chilean relations with the German-Italian-Jap trio, he'll be leaving President Castillo without a new world partner, and it's conceivable that the latter doesn't like the prospect.

The Argentine chieftain isn't pro-Axis or pro-German on sentimental grounds, either.

In private life he's a land baron and the Argentine soil and climate produce almost exactly the same crop of livestock that the United States does, so that there's no market here for his stuff, whereas it's in great demand throughout the Axis generally and in Germany in particular.

Argentina's aristocracy is mainly agricultural or grazing. Consequently it's predominantly pro-Axis, for business reasons. And President Castillo belongs to it.

In the big cities, though, like Buenos Aires and Rosario, there are industrial and financial interests which have ties with us Yankees, and that makes them favorable to our cause, especially against the Germans, who don't supply them with much nourishment.

Pressure Applied.

Well, President Castillo, coming, from out in the sticks, with his big rural landlord's complex, into manufacturing and banking Buenos Aires, is liable to have had strong local pressure to bear on him, since his arrival, to modify his ideas. Incidentally, it is possible that it was pretty imperative pressure. It wouldn't be unprecedented for a united Buenos Aires group to upset a national Argentine administration. Later, perhaps the ruralites, being in a country-wide majority, might, after quite a campaign, reverse matters. That, however, wouldn't be any great consolation to the ousted executive, after he'd been attended to by the immediate revolutionaries.

There's another item to be taken into consideration.

Isn't it imaginable that President Castillo has decided, in his own mind, that the Axis is due to be licked by the democracies despite his economic preferences? On that theory it personally behooves him to shape his Argentine course accordingly, and lose no time in doing so.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Saturday, Nov. 11, 1922.

City-wide observance of fourth anniversary of Armistice day was featured by unveiling Doughboy statue in Central park.

Fire destroyed two main buildings at plant of Mansfield Shale company Ohiosburg road.

Word was received that Wheeler Willett, native of Plymouth and former Mansfield resident, had been killed in railroad wreck in Texas.

W. C. Mansfield and Kent Oberlin left for Atlantic City to attend international Y. M. C. A. convention.

Eighty-second birthday anniversary of Mrs. Amy C. Figley, 161 Blymyer avenue.

Surprise party was given for Joseph P. Rizzo, South Main street, on his seventieth birthday anniversary.

Miss Barbara Morris and Charles Oswalt were married at First Presbyterian church.

TODAY IN HISTORY

At 11 a. m. on this date, in 1918, the world was once again at peace. Terms of the Armistice had been drawn up by the Supreme War Council of the Allies, and on November 7, presented by Marshal Foch to German representatives, within the Allied line. The Germans protested against the severity of the terms, but the resistance was hopeless. On Nov. 9, the Kaiser and the Crown Prince fled to Holland, and on Nov. 11, the last gun was fired at the front.

Change In Ideas About Tuberculosis.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The entire conception of tuberculosis has changed, and it has done so, not only during my lifetime, but really since I graduated from medical college and started in practice.

One of the early ideas was that it is hereditary. That had passed into limbo before my time. We knew it was infectious, but we had no realization of how frequently it is transmitted from human being to human being.

The reason the older medical authorities thought it was hereditary was because it so often occurred in several members of a single family. Now we know the reason for this is that one person in a family will give it to the others. Infection occurs from adults to children.

We firmly believed in my student days that the diagnosis could be made by listening to the chest with a stethoscope if only you conducted the examination carefully enough. Now we know that at least half the cases are missed this way, no matter how expert the doctor is with his stethoscope, and that the x-ray is really the final test for diagnosis. The stethoscope is used merely to determine the degree of activity of a case.

Changes in Diagnosis.

It used to be considered that the final and determining test for the diagnosis was finding the germs in the sputum. Now we know that if they are found it is a late case.

Under treatment it was taught like gospel 40 years ago that the patient could get well in his own home. Only a few arrangements had to be made to give him fresh air and the treatment would be just as successful at home as anywhere. Now the conviction is established that whenever possible the patient with tuberculosis should be placed in an institution, primarily in order to protect the other people in the home.

All that was needed for cure was supposed 40 years ago to be rest, fresh air and plenty of nourishing food. It is known now that it is almost impossible to cure a case of tuberculosis without surgical treatment, such as collapse of the lung. It certainly is true of what is known as the open case—one with a cavity.

New Treatment Realistic.

Climate, the layman's hope and idea of the be-all of tuberculosis treatment, was regarded as very doubtfully beneficial then, and the doctrine still holds.

We still need rest, fresh air and good food although we do not stuff tuberculous patients with extra meals nowadays as much as we used to. Climate then, as now, is assessed to add about a one per cent advantage to any cure.

These changes in viewpoint have certainly proved themselves in practice and have done much to help the improved results. They are often hard for the afflicted one to face, but they are certainly realistic.

Casualties On Industrial Front.

The casualties of war on the battle front command great attention. But the war casualties at home on the industrial front go by almost unnoticed except by those who experience them.

This year there will be approximately 1,760,000 workers injured in American factories. Another 18,000 will be killed.

This casualty list is far greater than that of the combat front. Yet not one of them was necessary. No accident has to happen—we allow accidents to happen through carelessness.

And if you happen to be one of those who believes he is exempt from danger, it will interest you to learn that 29,000 workers were killed last year outside their places of employment.

This is one casualty list Americans can keep down.—Toledo Times.

Interpreting the War News

Wall of Steel Encircling Nazis Seen as Aim of Allied Strategy

—By LOUIS F. KEEMLE

SPEEDY consolidation of the American hold on the northwestern and northern African coast promises to fulfill within a remarkably short time the Allied strategy of ringing Hitler's Europe with a wall of steel from which he cannot escape.

On the west is Britain; on the east Russia, and now the entire Mediterranean area appears likely to come under Allied control.

The North African campaign apparently is going even better than had been hoped by Allied strategists, who had every move figured long in advance and allowed an ample margin for adverse developments.

The arrival of Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, outstanding French war hero, to organize an anti-Axis army in Africa should do much to swing the French to the Allied cause.

The course which the French fleet will take is still uncertain, but the Allies apparently hope to neutralize it without having to destroy it. A hopeful feeling has developed in London that Admiral Jean Francois Darlan, French vice-premier and commander in chief of the armed forces, may be swung to the Allied cause, which probably would at least neutralize the fleet.

Darlan is in the company of Americans at Algiers, where he is being "entertained" by an American general. The implication is that he is in no sense a prisoner, but an honored guest.

It would be difficult for the British to bring Darlan over because of his unfriendly feeling toward them, but the Americans, as traditional frieneds of France, should have more influence.

It was no accident that the invasion of Africa was made an American expedition under an American general. The British stayed as much as possible in the background while President Roosevelt personally assumed the job of reassuring the French as to our intentions.

AS THINGS are shaping up in Africa and in Russia, it is difficult to see how Hitler can carry out the promise of his Sunday speech to strike a counter blow at the Allies.

A march through unoccupied France and Spain to attack Gibraltar is unlikely. Hitler lacks the air force in western Europe for such a venture, besides which it might dangerously reduce his strength in northwestern France, Belgium and Holland.

The word from Russia is that the Red army is taking the initiative in the Caucasus and that German assaults on Stalingrad are dwindling. If Hitler is to make good his boast that he will hold what he has, it is difficult to see how he can withdraw much strength from the occupied part of Russia to strike elsewhere.

Hitler's miscalculation about Russia has been brought home to him. Now his miscalculation about Japan is being brought home just as forcibly by the American invasion of Africa.

Hitler expected that Japan's entry into the war would keep America completely tied up in the Pacific and out of the European theater. Now American might is threatening his back door. Maybe that was in the back of his mind when he betrayed his secret thoughts at Munich by comparing himself to the late Kaiser.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — The capital political observers are just now dusting themselves off and getting back on their feet. That election knocked them for a ground-loop.

There have been landslides before and there will be again. But the old hosses around here can't remember one that caught the politicians themselves farther off base. Republican Leader Joe Martin and his cohorts, having their sweetest dreams, didn't see anything like that. Sen. Alben Barkley and his boys had nightmares, perhaps, but they didn't go as far as what happened.

Now, it comes down to taking stock, and when it comes to that the oldtimers aren't much better off than they were on that Wednesday morning when the returns rolled in.

THERE are, however, several subjects that keep cropping up in any discussion.

No. 1 is what effect this is going to have on 1944. To try to predict at this time is a waste of words. The war can be over, at its best, or at its worst in 1944. Whatever happens will change the situation. But one thing is being repeated constantly around Washington today: Both parties are in a mess.

The G.O.P., for all its staggering gains, is looking right down both barrels of a hair-trigger gun. One is named Thomas E. Dewey and the other Wendell L. Willkie. Sometime between now and the next general election, they are going to have to duck one of the other. Will it be Willkie and the impressive vote he rolled up two years ago against the greatest vote-getter the country has ever seen? Or will it be Dewey, who upset the Democratic applecart in his dash for the governorship of New York?

How will third-term Governor Bricker, of Ohio, and two-time No. 1 Willkie man, Governor Stassen, fit into the picture? Dewey's precedent shattering victory can't be brushed off, but neither can the fact that a Willkie Democrat, running on a Republican ticket, turned out New Deal Sen. Josh Lee in normally Democratic Oklahoma or that Clare Boothe Luce, a staunch Willkieite from the drop of the hat, walked into office as a Connecticut congresswoman.

I DON'T believe capital observers from now on will ignore the fact that it's just possible Joe Voter doesn't give a whoop about all this behind-the-scenes business; but they can't forget either that with Mr. A. Politician, it's bread-and-butter and the future of democracy. If the in-man can't guess better what the public wants than he did in this crisis, then congress, the only elected body in Washington (barring the president and vice president) had better fold its tent.

Just as a postscript, it might be worth mentioning that Washington is saying that so far as World War II is concerned prohibition is a dead issue. It's likely that Senator Lee's defeat in Oklahoma had several other factors involved than that dry amendment he endeavored to tack onto the 18-19 draft law.

Man About Manhattan

There's Magic In It

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Being a newspaperman I often meet interesting people, which takes in Bill Wilson, a professional magician known as Magini. Bill is one of the legion of army camp entertainers, and loves his job, but what makes him interesting to me is that he served in the last war, and saw the growth of camp entertainment from volunteer amateur "productions" to the full-time efforts of the immortal and still very-much-alive Elsie Janis.

Matter of fact, Bill, a native of Winnipeg, was in the first Canadian division to go overseas, and fought in the front lines for more than a year—at Vimy Ridge, Arras, Ailhoe, Merricourt, Hill 70, Paschaendale, Souchez and elsewhere.

It was only natural that on the boat going over he would help his buddies kill time by doing bits of magic, and even when he went over the top he carried a haversack filled with props. "If the Germans would have caught me, they would have thought I was a traveling notions counter," Bill says with a grin.

Those impromptu entertainments grew into so-called concert parties, and before the war was over, Bill had given two command performances—one for the then Prince of Wales, in a YMCA hut, and for Prince Arthur of Connaught.

TODAY he is as tall as ever and his eyes still a bright blue, but his reddish hair is touched with gray. Inconspicuously on his vest he wears a strip of ribbons, souvenir of the other war which left him a gas victim with "three months to live." Between the wars he followed his profession of magician, married a very pretty girl who helped him with his act, and became a highly proficient practitioner of the black arts.

When this war came along, Bill helped sell USO on magic shows for soldiers. He has been all over the country, sometimes out of the country, giving shows in cornfields, on steps of incompleted camp buildings, under the lights of jeeps.

"It's got everything beat," Bill says. "Every little thing you do is appreciated. The boys are alive to everything, and when I have them help me with my act, they like it that much more. And say, are those paratroopers tough? They don't sit on the ground; they fall on it!"

THERE'S another holdover from the last war who interests me too. He is Louis Seres, who as head chef of the Biltmore hotel in 1917 conducted many experiments with rationed foods. President of the Biltmore in those days, the late John McE. Bowman, was head of the hotel, restaurant, dining car and steamship division of the U. S. Food administration, and before any food saving requests were passed on to the country at large, Seres experimented with them in the hotel kitchens and got reaction of the diners.

A Farmer's Diary

Success Story

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

A GRAY, hard-working farmer friend called my attention to a magazine story. It told how a young man transformed the old home farm from poverty to wealth in about 12 years.

It told how his herd of registered Guernseys started with one cow. It described his modern milking room, today, with automatic waterers at each cow's head. It described the spacious shed where the concrete floor sloped gradually toward the center so that every bit of valuable manure and litter might be conserved and hauled out every spring with the tractor spreader, to be disked under immediately.

His farm, it said, was seeded to thick rye every fall, and his 20-acre pasture had a top dressing of superphosphate and lime and then a mixture of bluegrass, red clover and alfalfa seed was added. After spring rains, this pasture was thick with deep lush growth.

It gave a picture of the modern home where now the family lives, and in an inset showed the old-time buildings which had been remodeled.

"He's done what I've been tryin' to do all my life," remarked my friend wistfully. "I guess that young fellow could show us all a thing or two!"

And then I surprised him by a question that seemed irrelevant. "Did you ever notice, in Farm Journal, the comic character, Peter Tumbledown?"

"Sure," he chuckled. "I never missed old Peter for years and years. If I did, my wife was sure to call my attention to his doings. She said it seemed like me'n him was brothers! Every time he had a little good luck, he'd pull some asinine boner—nothin' bad, but just darn human! What's ever become of Peter, anyhow?"

"He's still around . . . a neighbor to Ohio's Hustlin' Paw Tucker. He epitomizes those qualities which we are all ashamed to admit that we possess. We all admire success, but it's partly luck—financial success, I mean. A man's real worth should be measured in relation to the struggle for betterment that he puts up. Without struggle, great spiritual fervor and deep human sympathy will be lacking. So-called "success stories" often leave out the best part. A man's life isn't successful merely because he becomes wealthy, although that's the commonest measure . . ."

"You got something there," he said. "Write it down, and I'll read it to my wife. She might believe you."

CHAPTER XIII

Finally Livia stood up.

"I must get home," she said apologetically. "I have the job?"

"Of course!" said Mrs. Fletcher.

"Really? When do I start—and where?"

"You've started. Come, I'll show you to your room," said Mrs. Fletcher, gently taking Livia's arm.

"Room?" Livia's eyes were pin points of alarm. "Room? What do you mean room? I—" She turned from the woman to the apelike man, who was moving to the door, but still watching her and still picking his front teeth with his thumb nail. Full realization of the "job" came to Livia

She ran to the door. She thought the man would stop her, and she screamed with the full force of her young strong voice But he moved away from the door. Livia ran for two blocks before she felt safe.

That evening she told Ted:

"I'll take the job in the drive-in."

* * *

When Ted and Joe Sullivan called at the house in Beverly Hills, the door was opened by a trim maid who protested:

"There is no one called Fletcher here"

They insisted on seeing the owner, and were taken to a room where an old gentleman was reading a book. He was courteous and polite, but insisted he, and only he, occupied the house.

"You either gave us the wrong address — or dreamed the whole affair," Joe teased Livia. But Ted, seeing the horror on Livia's face, told him sharply to shut up.

The drive-in opened for business at eight in the morning, and closed at twelve The waitresses worked in two shifts

It looked easy from the other side of the tray, but the work was surprisingly difficult At the beginning, Ted, himself, accompanied Livia, in her blue and yellow uniform, and carried the trays for her, showing her how to clip them to the side of the cars Livia insisted on clipping the fourth tray herself and precipitated the contents into the lap of a young man Livia's face was scarlet.

"I'm sorry, so sorry," she told the man He smiled into her worried eyes.

"That's okay It'll soon dry."

She did not drop any more trays that day, but managed to mix up several orders and was diffident about pushing her way through the clamoring waitresses

"You're doing fine, honey," Ted cheered Livia. But she felt hopelessly inadequate.

Tips varied from a nickel to a quarter. At the end of her first week, Livia had earned $7 in tips plus $15 salary. But against this, Livia had broken $6 worth of cups and plates Ted wanted to defray this himself.

"I'll throw up the job if you do," Livia threatened.

The breakage diminished, and the tips increased as the weeks passed But Livia was always exhausted at the finish of her work.

Six other girls were employed in the drive-in, one of a chain of fifty. They wore blue suits and caps with the gold buttons and stripes running the length of the trousers. They were young and mostly good-looking. And after they had accepted Livia's special position with Ted, they liked her —with the exception of Ann Sherman, a blue-eyed, yellow-haired girl, with a beautiful figure. Ted had dated her several times before the advent of Livia. She hated Livia with all the force of her small soul.

Livia had been working for six weeks when a handsome movie star drove in. Both she and Ann were without customers at the time, and they raced to serve him. He smiled at their eager faces, then gave his order to Livia.

Ann sulked. Just before going home she approached Livia, her mouth set in a thin line.

"How much did he tip you?" she demanded

"Who?" Livia asked.

You know who. I saw him give you a dollar."

"Then why did you ask me?" demanded Livia.

"Because I think you should share it with me."

"Let's ask Ted," said Livia. And now all the hatred in Ann flashed out—

"Just because you're running after Ted you think you run this place, you little——"

"What's the matter?" Ted dispersed the group of girls. Ann looked sulky

"Why don't you tell him?" she sneered The silence was broken by Ted

"Well what is it?"

"Nothin'" said Livia and hurried to serve a customer.

Going home with Ted Livia was thoughtful She, herself, was not worried about Ann. But perhaps Ted would suffer. He was in line for the vacant job of supervisor for the entire fifty drive-ins. A scandal, or a charge of favoritism might affect his chances

"After this, we'd better not be so friendly," she said to Ted

"After this, I hope we'll be more friendly," he replied, grinning. "I've got that job—with a $30 increase a week. Swell, isn't it?"

"Oh, I'm so glad for you, Ted" He slowed up the car by the curb and turned to her.

"Really glad?"

"Yes, of course." He put an arm around her shoulders and drew her toward him.

"Let's get married?"

"But, Ted—"

"You know I love you," he interrupted her. "What do you say?"

"But—"

"But nothing. We'll take tomorrow off and get married."

"No—not so soon. I—"

"But you will marry me?"

"I know it's old fashioned to say—'I'll think it over,' but—" She was embarrassed She was not in love with Ted, but he mustn't be hurt

"Okay," he said cheerfully. 'I just wanted you to know how I feel about you You're my girl—don't forget that"

"All right, Ted, I'm your girl," she said lightly.

A week later Bruce's car appeared at the drive-in. A beautiful blond girl was sitting between Bruce and another man. Bruce's wife!

The man hailed Livia.

"Waitress—we're in a hurry"

He repeated, "Hey, there, we're in a hurry!" She recognized the voice of Terry Davidson, who was engaged to Bruce's sister, Elizabeth. She dare not answer Bruce and his wife must not see her in her uniform.

"Are you deaf?" said Davidson irritatedly. She walked quickly inside to the kitchen But her luck was bad The man who had replaced Ted followed her

"Are you busy?" he asked.

"Well—no—"

There are some people waiting to be served." His voice was kind, but firm. Livia followed him outside.

"Your order?" she asked Davidson.

"You've been long enough," he grumbled. He did not recognize her. "Bring me an egg and bacon sandwich and coffee." He passed the menu to the woman sitting next to Bruce, "What do you want?"

Bruce was staring at her as though he did not believe what he saw.

"Livia!" he shouted joyfully. "Livia!"

"I'll bring your sandwich," she muttered to Davidson and hurried away

"Excuse me," Bruce said, left the car and ran after Livia

A customer chasing a waitress was unusual even for Hollywood Everyone stopped eating, talking, driving or taking orders, and watched Bruce run after Livia

The new manager hastened into the kitchen after them.

"I must ask you to leave this young lady alone," he said. 'I warn you, she'll lose her job—shall I call the police, Miss Clarkson?" Bruce turned from Livia and advanced slowly toward the manager, who retreated nervously.

"It's all right," Livia assured him. "I—er—I know him. It's all right"

"When you've finished your tete-a-tete," the manager said, "You might let me know because there'll be some customers who want to be served" He left them

He wanted to fire her. But he was afraid Ted Curtiss would repeat the performance on him.

"You don't have to hold my arm," Livia looked angrily at Bruce. "I won't run away." Bruce eased his grip, but did not let her go

"Where've you been hiding?" he asked "And why?"

"She's beautiful." Livia said

"Who's beautiful?"

"Your—the girl in the car." Bruce was nonplused, but answered vaguely.

"Yes, I suppose she is But you haven't answered my question Why did you run out on me?" She became very angry

"It's not enough that you break my heart, but you must put me in wrong as well"

"What are you talking about?"

"As if you didn't know"

"I don't '

"That girl—"

"What has she got to do with it?"

"What has she got to do with it?" mimicked Livia. She was furious and again struggled to free herself 'What has—I'm not in the habit of coming between a man and his wife." Her voice broke—'Bruce, why did you marry her? I—" She was weeping now and turned to hide her face from him

"One of us is crazy," said Bruce helplessly, "Who has married who?"

"You and that girl." The cook bending over the stove jumped as Bruce shouted:

"By the almighty ocean — so that's it!"

"Yes, that's it," said Livia stubbornly.

"Come with me."

"Where are you taking me?" She held back.

"I want to introduce you to—that girl." Livia struggled desperately.

"Really, Bruce, you might spare me this"

"But she's a nice girl," he insisted "I know you'll be great friends" They were now outside.

'Please let go of my arm," she whispered.

"You won't run away again?"

"No, no, I promise."

Rev. Carl Elder, of Carrollton who was an American missionary in Thailand before occupation of that country by the Japanese, was the speaker at yesterday's meeting of the Rotary club, held at the Mansfield-Leland hotel

Rev. Elder and members of his family were among the Americans aboard the exchange ship Gripsholm, which arrived in New York in August, and after the war has been won he sees great need of a return of missionary workers to the Far East to aid in rehabilitation of that part of the world as a part of the effort to establish permanent peace

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT FACE PIMPLES

These disfiguring spots affecting the outer or surface layer of the skin often result from a temporary, minor disturbance, or from incorrect cleansing.

You can relieve the itchy, burning soreness and thereby help your skin by using an ointment whose medication stays in active contact with the pimply spots. Apply it every night and leave it on all night. It does a world of good.

For 45 years people have used Resinol Ointment to fill this need. It soothes the irritated oil ducts where many surface pimples start, and so aids healing. Civilian Defense Set-Up Described At P.T.A. Meet

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch gave a comprehensive talk on "Civilian Defense In Mansfield" at last night's meeting of Woodland P. T. A. There are 125 sectors into which Mansfield is divided, with a minimum of four air raid wardens for each sector.

Judge Kalbfleisch discussed, also, the public works division of civilian defense: the firemen and auxiliary firemen, emergency medical service which handles all casualties except operations, and the decontamination stations for people. He described the type of sirens which probably will be used as air raid warning signals in this city.

The P. T. A.'s subscription card party will be held Nov. 20. Next regular meeting will take place on Dec. 8.

Introducing Betty Ingles Davis—war-wife, mother and worker.

A woman who is meeting the same problems millions of others have met—and meeting them in a way that can give you a few tips.

When Bernard Davis went to war and his family's income was more than cut in two, Betty Davis gave up their seven-room house in New York's suburbs and moved into a four-room apartment in Jackson Heights. She has kept her own job as a case worker in the Community Service Society and cares for Johnny (who is almost four), while she awaits the birth of another baby in January.

Betty Davis is a daughter of the South — tall, dark-eyed, soft-voiced. She was graduated from Hollins College (Virginia) and took her Master's Degree in Social Science at William and Mary. In 1935, while she was doing social service work in Baltimore, she was married to Bernard Davis, who left his job as personnel director with the New York State Employment Service to enter the Technical Training Division of the Army Air Corps at Miami Beach.

That left Mrs. Davis alone to run the household. But don't picture her as a worried, nervous war-wife. She sits quietly, talks gently, seasoning her words with a warm, wide smile. (Only her dark eyes hold a hint of stress.)

"It's a difficult adjustment to make—and it doesn't get any easier," she says. "But I've just accepted the fact that it's part of the times and I have to adjust to it.

"The job helps, of course. First, it keeps me busy. And then in my work I come in contact with many people who are in difficulty. I have heard the stories of so many women worse off than I am that I don't seem to be having a bad time.

"Their greatest difficulty is economic—the problem of providing and caring for the children."

Mrs. Davis solved her child care problem like this: She gets breakfast herself while Johnny careens around on his tricycle. During the morning she leaves him in a nursery school. The colored maid she has had for years cares for him in the afternoon and gets dinner. Then Mrs. Davis takes Johnny in charge for a story hour before he goes to bed.

Johnny has had some wartime adjustment problems too. It wasn't fun to leave his friends and yard in the country for a small apartment in town. He misses his father, too.

Most of Mrs. Davis' letters to her husband are written on the subway — she carries a pad and pencil in her bag and writes going to and from work.

"The blues? I just won't have them," she says. "I think the secret of avoiding them is to keep busy, to keep interested in people and to have people around. And this is a tip to all war wives."
